Double Execution Stayed by Sheriff As Orders Conflict

Justice of Louisiana Supreme Court Stays Hanging After Being Outvoted by Associates—Governor Also Stays Hanging.

Franklin, La., Jan. 5 (AP).—The scheduled hanging of Mrs. Ada Bonner LeBouef and Dr. Thomas L. Dreher became still more confused today when Governor Long announced at Baton Rouge that he had cancelled his instructions to Sheriff Pecot not to proceed with the executions.

"I have asked the state supreme court for instructions in the matter," the governor said. "I have directed the sheriff to disregard my previous orders."

Sheriff Pecot said today, when informed of the governor's statement, that he had not decided whether to proceed with the hanging later today as originally ordered, but later announced that Governor Long had again reprieved Mrs. LeBouef and Dr. Dreher, until next Saturday.

"I am waiting further instructions from the governor and the supreme court," he announced.

"I have consulted other members of the court," the governor explained, "and they seem to think the act of the chief justice is an impossible one. The whole state seems to be alarmed by such individual action of the chief justice against the whole court.

"I have not recalled the death warrant and it still stands, as soon as I get instructions from the supreme court, I will advise the sheriff further.

"The act of the chief justice is an attack upon the majesty of the supreme court, I fear."

Supreme Court Judges Disagree

Prior to the reprieve issued by the governor a dramatic disagreement as to whether the couple should be hanged for the murder of the woman's husband had entered the case. The disagreement was among members of the supreme court. Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill ordered that the executions be stayed, while four associate justices notified Sheriff Charles Pecot to proceed with the hanging, which had been set for three o'clock this morning.

The division of opinion in the supreme court was the second rift in the LeBouef-Dreher case over the question whether or not they should hang.

Governor Refused Clemency

Two days ago Governor Long refused clemency to the pair after a favorable recommendation from the pardon board. The refusal caused an open and dramatic break between the governor and Paul N. Cyr, lieutenant governor and a member of the board, who charged publicly that the governor "deliberately double-crossed me."

Cyr in his break with the governor charged that Long had shown favoritism in commuting the sentence of a New Orleans slayer and the governor replied that in their recommendation for clemency in the case the pardon board "told me they thought it was an accident."

Governor Long scouted any other claim in the LeBouef case than that it was blooded murder." He asked if anyone "thinks that any pistols or guns went off accidentally on Lake Bourde when James LeBouef died." Mrs. Le Boeuf and Dr. Dreher are now convicted for the slaying of James J. Le Boeuf, the woman's husband, whose body was found in Lake Palourde, weighed down with pig irons, some 18 months ago.

Belated Insanity Plea Denied.

A determined fight was made here yesterday by defense attorneys to save the lives of their clients on the grounds of insanity, but Judge James Simon, who presided at the trial, held that the woman and physician were sane and refused to appoint a lunacy commission.

After the hearing the attorneys sped by automobile to New Orleans where they appeared before the five members of the Supreme court in an attempt to obtain a stay of execution and compel Judge Simon to appear before the high court and show cause why he should not appoint a lunacy commission.

Sheriff Gets Conflicting Orders.

The hearing over, four associate justices announced that the writs were denied and Associate Justice Land instructed the sheriff by telephone to proceed with the execution. "Let me talk to the sheriff," Chief Justice O'Neill, who had issued a writ to stay the execution, interposed. "Don't execute those people tomorrow," he shouted through the telephone to the sheriff. "One judge has the right to issue the writ, and as chief justice of this court I order that the executions be stayed."

Chief O'Neill declared he was empowered by the state constitution to prevent hangings. The four dissenting justices, Brunot, Overton, Rogers and Land, held that as a majority of the court their decision was final.

Orders Judge to Show Cause.

In granting the stay of execution, Chief Justice O'Neill ordered Judge Simon and Sheriff Pecot to appear before the Supreme court next Friday to show cause why the lunacy commission should not be appointed.

Mrs. Le Bouef was slain July 1, 1927. Mrs. Le Bouef and Dr. Dreher were convicted and found guilty of the murder along with James Beadle, Morgan City trapper, who drew a life sentence which he is serving. Dr. Dreher pleaded at the trial that Beadle

Smuggle Millions In Liquor to U. S.

Canadian Newspaper Names Value of Liquor Smuggled From That Country Was 100 Million Dollars in Less Than Five Years.

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 5 (AP).—A despatch to the Globe today from Ottawa says:

"One hundred million dollars' worth of alcoholic beverages has been smuggled from Canada to the United States since the anti-smuggling treaty between the two countries was signed less than five years ago. The illicit traffic has steadily increased until this year it has exceeded $30,000,000."

The despatch adds that for this reason United States coast guard and prohibition officials are en route to Ottawa to confer with Canadian officials concerning possible revision of the treaty. The conference will open Monday.

The despatch gives the following tables of exports of Canadian alcoholic beverages by recent fiscal years:

Year	Total	To U. S.
1924	$14,854,174	$8,714,709
1925	16,225,533	11,610,169
1926	21,207,777	17,207,777
1927	24,838,053	22,162,370
1928	27,287,137	24,132,188

The despatch adds:

"To these figures must be added re-exports from Canada of Scotch whiskies, French wines, etc. In the last fiscal year these totaled $7,439,741 to the United States."

The Globe in another story today says:

"Recent organized effort to the big booze interests to induce the Ontario liquor control board to sell direct for the export trade has met with flat failure."

The board refused to have anything to do with the proposition and gave warning that it would not be approached on the matter again.

The Globe adds: "The booze men also assured the board that under their proposed arrangement they would buy supplies from the board and it alone; that they would take care of all shipments from the board's storehouse to points of destination and the expense pertaining thereto; and that they would lay off the Quebec booze which is now said to be coming into Ontario in large quantities and being short-circuited in many instances to find ready sale, particularly along the Detroit waterfront."

According to the Globe, the man who approached the board said that "American customers" were prepared to pay "fabulous" prices for "good safe brands", and that the Ontario liquor control board would be paid more than regular prices.

Rubber Co. Official Falls to Death

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—Shortly after returning to his West 54th street apartment from an evening at the theatre and at a night club, Horace L. Williamson, 65, an official of the United States Rubber Company, fell from a window on the tenth floor and was killed instantly.

Miss Fru Munally, his guest of the evening, was waiting for the elevator after leaving the Williamson apartment when the house superintendent told her Williamson's body had been found in the rear yard.

She told the police she had been Williamson's guest at dinner and that later they had attended a theatre and a night club, returning to the apartment shortly after 11 o'clock. Williamson fell to his death shortly after midnight.

Police expressed the opinion that after the departure of Miss Munally Williamson had attempted to open the window and fell when he lost his balance. He was in evening clothes.

Mr. Williamson was a member of many New York clubs.

Parking Grounds Used by 50,828

Joseph T. Perry, caretaker of the merchants' public parking grounds on John street, issued cards to 50,828 motor vehicle drivers who parked their autos there from April 1, 1928, to January 1, 1929. The number is about 7,000 less than during the nine months of 1927.

By months, the cars parked numbered as follows: April, 5,284; May, 5,460; June, 5,439; July, 5,475; August, 5,775; September, 5,370; October, 5,400; November, 5,296; December, 7,338.

fired the fatal shots while Beadle blamed the physician.

The state claimed that a love affair between Mrs. Le Bouef and Dr. Dreher was the motive and that they conspired to slay the woman's husband.

Governor Halted Preparations.

The governor telephoned Sheriff Pecot from Baton Rouge to cease preparations for the double hanging until after litigation over the legal snarl involving appointment of a sanity commission is disposed of.

Question Mark Flies for Answer; Fifth Day in Air

Army Airplane Is Answering Question How Close Man and Man-Made Contrivances Can Approach Birds in Sustained Flight.

Metropolitan Airport, Los Angeles, Jan. 5 (AP).—The fifth day of the Army monoplane Question Mark's endurance flight began at 7:26 o'clock this morning. The plane at that time was reported to be in "excellent condition" in spite of her 96 hours in the air.

Cruising serenely onward into uncharted time spaces of the air the Army airplane Question Mark today groped for the answer how close man and man-made contrivances can approach the birds in sustained flight.

Becoming in reality a question mark of the skies as she soared toward dirigible records after dropping all existing airplane endurance records from the air, the tri-motored Fokker still held back a solution of whether, given unlimited fuel and supplies, man or motors would crack first in continuous flight.

Having firmly tested her wings in overcoming extremeely troublesome weather, motor and fuel problems, the Question Mark at 2:26 a. m. today passed her ninety-first hour in the air. She then had supported her conquering crew of five aloft for more than a full day longer than man ever flew before in an airplane.

At dawn tomorrow morning the Question Mark will have eclipsed all existing lighter-than-air endurance records.

The dirigible endurance record of 118 hours made several years ago by the French-owned Dixmude will be passed at 5:25 a.m. Sunday morning. Before that the crew will have claimed the record of 111 hours, 46 minutes made by the Graf Zeppelin in her recent flight to America.

Covered Over 6,500 Miles.

It is estimated that the plane has covered well over 6,500 miles, which if traveled in a bee-line eastward would have carried her far out over the European continent.

Barring adverse flying conditions that would prevent refueling of the ship, her builders and army sponsors believe the plane can fly for 300 hours, which if made in a straight-line flight would nearly girdle the globe.

The plane was functioning smoothly over this airport at midnight today when refueling Plane No. 1 transferred 200 gallons of gasoline in a 7-minute contact at an altitude of 2,750 feet. The operation was the fourth successful night refueling contact since the ship left this airport at 7:26 a. m., January 1, under orders to remain up as long as the motors ran.

During the past 24 hours Major Carl Spatz, in command, has shown a growing tendency to hold the plane close to this port so that in the event she is forced down the crew would not be robbed of official credit for breaking all previous airplane world's endurance records.

International aeronautic regulations specify a ship must land where it took off to gain official recognition for a record-breaking performance.

Returns from Imperial Valley.

The ship returned here yesterday from the Imperial Valley, where she had been driven Thursday when fogs obscured vision along the coast and nearly caused a shortage of fuel.

The first official observation of the motors was made yesterday afternoon by W. E. Thomas, expert for the builders, the Wright Aeronautical Corporation. Going up to 3,000 feet he flew for 30 minutes beside the ship and reported:

"The engines are functioning normally and appeared just as efficient as at the start of the flight. The log reports reveal a satisfactory performance which these engines would give for 400 or more hours under nomal conditions."

Major Spatz appeared happy and cheerful but Captain Ira C. Eaker, chief pilot, who has developed a slight cold, was said to look haggard. Log reports dropped here have stated all the men are well, though some were reported fatigued, despite the opportunity to sleep when off duty.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Markie, a son, George S., at City of Kingston Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Steward, 13 Second avenue, a son, Wallace Jerome, at City of Kingston Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Israel Shapiro, 44 North Front street, a son, Ralph, at City of Kingston Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Granville D. Lockwood, Stone Ridge, a son, Granville Arthur, at City of Kingston Hospital.

26 Below Zero at Tupper Lake.

Tupper Lake, N. Y., Jan. 5 (AP).—The mercury dropped today to 26 degrees below zero, the coldest temperature recorded here thus far this winter. The temperature began falling hourly yesterday afternoon. A slight moderation was recorded later although the prevailing temperature remained at 19 degrees below.

Hoover Anxious to Reach Washington

Hopeful of Finishing Tasks Awaiting Him Within a Week—May Make Whirlwind Tour of West Indies.

U. S. S. Utah, En Route to Hampton Roads, Jan. 5 (AP).—Herbert Hoover faced this, his last day at sea, anxious to get to Washington to tackle the next big job ahead—that of selecting his official family. He plans to start right in with a series of conferences with party leaders over the country and especially those men who were foremost in his councils during the campaign. He is hopeful that he can get through in a week in order to be able to go to Florida for recreation and fishing, with perhaps later a whirlwind tour of the West Indies, including Cuba, Haiti, Santo Domingo and Porto Rico.

The last few days at sea have not been altogether to Mr. Hoover's liking as the Utah encountered a couple of squalls with stiff winds and choppy seas, and there was more rough water in prospect for today as the ship neared Cape Hatteras.

Despite somewhat unfavorable weather, the Utah still is making good time and probably will arrive at Hampton Roads Sunday an hour or two ahead of the scheduled time, 8 a. m., unless fog is encountered off the Virginia coast.

It was announced today that the Utah's high frequency radio set, which operated so successfully and efficiently in transmitting to Arlington thousands of words in press dispatches, will be shipped to the U. S. S. Pittsburgh in Asiatic waters. With its installation, the Pittsburgh will be able to communicate direct with Arlington in handling both official and commercial messages.

Memento of Homeward Trip.

As a momento of the homeward trip, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover today received a pair of brass candlesticks and brass bonbon trays designed and made in the ship's shop. The presentation was without ceremony, Captain Train handing the gifts to Mr. and Mrs. Hoover in their suite.

Mr. Hoover today gave the Utah wardroom officrs an autographed photograph of himself. The photograph was framed and placed in the wardroom along with those of former President Taft and the late President Harding, who once was a guest on this vessel. The photograph bears the inscription: "To wardroom officers U. S. S. Utah, with kind regards of Herbert Hoover."

EDWARD MORAN HEADS UNION HOSE COMPANY NO. 4

At the annual meeting of Union Hose Company No. 4 held Friday evening, January 4, Edward Moran was re-elected president of the company for the year 1929.

The election of officers was as follows: President, Edward Moran; foreman, Joseph Cwill; first assistant, John Murphy; second assistant, Joseph Buchanan; secretary, Raymond Cwill; treasurer, James J. Collins; steward, William Keating; director for five years, Joseph Sparling; delegate to the K. F. F. A. for one year, Francis Cashin; delegate to the Hudson Valley Volunteer Fireman's Association, Ernest Brown; three delegates to the Veteran Volunteer Fire Association, Joseph Cwill, Francis Cashin and Edward Moran.

After the meeting the members enjoyed a delightful banquet served them by the Ladies' Auxiliary, also cigars donated by Rose and Gorman and the Kaplan Furniture Company of downtown, for which a rising vote of thanks was extended to them.

The financial standing of the company is very good.

MRS. ALTON B. PARKER HEADS BENEFIT FOR CHILDREN

A large card party will be held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Plaza, New York city, on Friday afternoon, January 18, for the benefit of the Walter Scott Free Industrial School for Crippled Children and the Lulu Thorley Lyons Home for Crippled and Delicate Children. The chairman is Mrs. Alton Brooks Parker.

The school is at 55 West Sixty-eighth street, where children are taught from the kindergarten through the eighth grade, and in the meantime given medical and surgical attention, which in nine cases out of ten fits their little crippled bodies for the more strenuous high school life after they graduate.

"PRUNE WHISKEY" BORE FORGED LABELS AND SEALS

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 5 (AP).—Thousands of dollars worth of "prune whiskey" was dispensed to New Year's revellers in Detroit and Buffalo from bottles bearing the forged labels of well-known distilleries and sealed with Ontario liquor control board stamps. This information has been obtained by Ontario liquor board investigators.

The board, through the use of specially marked labels always has taken precautionary measures against forgery. Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the board, said that measures would be adopted to make more difficult the imitation of official seals.

Back Draft Called Firemen.

A back draft in a stove in the apartments of William F. Lehr at 12 Clifton avenue caused the fire department to respond to a still alarm of fire Friday afternoon. There was no damage.

Broadway Crossing Elimination Ordered

Public Service Commission Approves Plan Filed by Railroad on November 16, Providing For Both Subway and Street Level Roads For Vehicles and Walks For Pedestrians—Abutting Buildings Not Disturbed.

Albany, Jan. 5.—Elimination of the Broadway crossing of the New York Central tracks in Kingston has been directed by the Public Service Commission by depressing the grade of the street on its present line and carrying it under the railroad tracks in a subway. This also involves raising the grade of the railroad about one foot.

The commission approves the general scheme provided in the plan filed by the railroad company on November 16 as it will reduce to a minimum the land and property damage which will follow elimination of Kingston's main grade crossing. The estimated cost under this plan, exclusive of land and property damage, is $454,000.

Subway and Street Level Headway.

There will be a roadway in the subway 38 feet wide without center columns, the roadway to be paved with stone block. Retaining walls will extend through the subway at the edges of the depressed roadway. There will also be a roadway 16 feet wide, with a five foot falk on each side of the main subway at the present street level back of the retaining walls, and a pedestrian subway, with six foot walk, placed in each abutment connected at each end to sidewalks to the present street level by stairs.

The plan under which the elimination will be accomplished was favored by the railroad and the Department of Public Works and calls for very little land appropriation.

The railroad is directed to prepare the detail plans and submit them to the commission for approval. It will also do the work.

City and County Opposed Plan.

Kingston and Ulster county opposed the elimination until they were assured that the railroad tracks throughout the city would not be depressed except at great cost.

The railroad claimed that this was not feasible as it would require lowering of the grade for three miles, depressing all freight yard tracks or removing them out of the city, location of main tracks on a temporary right of way during elimination of crossings involved, a new connection with the Ulster and Delaware railroad, and would interere with various industrial sidings in the city.

The railroad maintained that the cost of depressing the grade of the railroad through the city would exceed the cost of eliminating seven other grade crossings in Kingston.

Delay Not Favored.

Kingston and Ulster county asked that all proceedings be delayed until a study could be made of the cost involved in depressing the tracks for the three miles. The commission holds that to grant the request would necessitate closing the proceedings tending to do away with the Broadway crossing as the crossing is not included in the 1929 grade crossing program. Kingston and Ulster county not filing any suggestions under the Grade Crossing Law as to suggested grade crossing eliminations which must be included in any scheme for general track depression in Kingston.

Why Elimination Is Necessary.

The commission, in its decision, holds that elimination of roadway crossing is necessary because of the large volume of vehicular, trolley and pedestrian travel and general inconvenience caused by frequent lowering of the existing gates at the railroad crossing.

Best Without Excessive Cost.

The cost of elimination under the other plans considered would be over $1,000,000 and it would be necessary to cut off the front part of business properties adjacent to the subway. Under the plan made the basis of the commission's order, buildings will not be disturbed back of the street line and affords the best method of elimination without excessive cost.

Study Other Eliminations.

The commission suggests that the city and the county proceed with their study of the feasibility of track elevation through the city and ascertain whether it can be accomplished at a reasonable cost.

Wrecked Fire Hydrant.

It was reported to the police department Friday that an automobile driven by J. F. Cooney of Springfield, Mass., had skidded and crashed into the fire hydrant at the corner of Tremper avenue and Elmendorf street, wrecking it. The water department was notified and made the necessary repairs.

Shot Self With Christmas Gift

Ellis Gray, 14, Accidentally Shot Self With High Powered Rifle Given Him for Christmas by His Father at Family Home on North Street.

Ellis Gray, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Gray, who reside on Terry's brickyard on North street, accidentally shot himself at the family home shortly after 3 o'clock Friday afternoon with a high powered .22 caliber rifle that had been given him as a Christmas present by his father. The bullet from the rifle entered the head below the right ear, traveling in an upward course and fracturing the boy's skull. He also sustained a broken neck.

From the story as gathered by Sergeant Charles Phianey and Coroner W. Norman Conner, the dead boy and his brother, LeRoy, Jr., 11 years old, were leaning out of an open window facing on North street. The rifle lay between them with the butt resting on the floor of the room. Some birds in a tree near the house attracted the attention of the boys and Ellis started to raise the gun. As he did so he must have touched the trigger for the gun discharged and Ellis dropped to the floor.

His brother, LeRoy, ran screaming to find his mother and when they returned to the room they found Ellis lying on the floor bleeding profusely. The police department was notified and Officers Urban Healey and Gurnsey Burger were rushed to the house with the city ambulance, removing the wounded boy to the City of Kingston Hospital. The boy, however, died as he was entering the hospital.

From the investigation made by the sergeant and coroner they believe that the shooting was entirely accidental, and occurred as related above.

At the direction of Coroner Conner an autopsy was performed on the body by Drs. Snyder, Jacobson and Krom, and the body was later turned over to the undertaking firm of Jensen & Perry, at the request of the family.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon from funeral parlors at 93 Broadway.

Improvement in King's Condition

London, Jan. 5 (AP).—King George has scored another gain in his fight for recovery. After two days in which His Majesty's condition remained stationary, his doctors were able this morning to report a further slight improvement.

The medical bulletins meanwhile have showed that the King was passing his days more comfortably and resting better at night. This gratifying state of affairs, it was taken for granted, was notably helpful in bringing about the betterment announced today. The morning bulletin said:

"The King has had a good night and there is a slight improvement in His Majesty's condition."

Palace circles regarded this morning's bulletin with satisfaction.

Sir Hugh Rigby, the surgeon, who did not call at the palace last night for the first time since his operation on the King during December, arrived with Lord Dawson of Penn shortly before 10 this morning and the two doctors remained in consultation with Sir Stanley Hewett for more than an hour and a half.

It was stated that no significance was to be attached to Dr. Rigby's visit today.

Blizzard Raging In Southwest

Kansas City, Jan. 5 (AP).—Traffic at the rush hour here this morning was in nearly a hopeless snarl following 18 hours of snowfall which a strong wind turned into a blizzard. There was bad drifting. Street car traffic was paralyzed, and automobile traffic was perilous because of freezing rain which preceded the snow.

Heavy snows were reported from widely scattered points over the southwest. About six inches had fallen here at daybreak.

REDUCTION ANNOUNCED IN PRICE OF OLDSMOBILES

New York, Jan. 5.—I. J. Reuter, president and general manager of the Olds Motor Works, announced a reduction in the price of all models of Oldsmobiles, effective today noon.

South-Belchert, local Oldsmobile dealers, stated in connection with the above this is first change in price Oldsmobile has made in three years. The new 1929 models go on display today all over the country, coincident with the opening of the New York show.

Local Dry Agents Seize Still on Woodstock Farm

Alfred J. Farrell, Alleged Owner of Plant, Will be Apprehended—Local Agents Now Under the Direction of Palmer Canfield.

The prohibition officers from the Kingston office journeyed to Woodstock Friday where they discovered a 400 gallon still on the farm of Alfred J. Farrell on the turnpike road running to Overlook Mountain. The still was of unusual construction, probably designed to be artistic in conformity with the atmosphere which prevails in Woodstock. The still together with condensor, coils and 35 fifty gallons barrels of cider was destroyed on the premises by the agents.

Indications were that the still was being used to manufacture applejack. The still was located in a two-story and basement barn on the premises. A low pressure boiler was used to operate the plant, which was unique in construction. The still was a homemade affair which, however, apparently was efficient in operation. It consisted of a wooden box, copper lined, through which steam coils were introduced to bring the cider to a distilling point.

Farrell, the alleged owner of the plant, will be apprehended and arraigned before U. S. Commissioner A. C. Connelly at a later date.

Under Direction of Canfield.

The local agents are now operating from their new base at Albany under the direction of Palmer Canfield, former mayor of this city, who has assumed his duties as director of the newly created district, a part of which was taken from the Buffalo district and a part from the New York district. The district in which Kingston is located and which comes under the direction of Mr. Canfield extends from metropolitan New York north to the Canadian border and west to the Buffffalo district which has been decreased in size. According to Mr. Canfield's present plans the local office will be maintained in this city with an increased number of agents working here. Agents stationed at the local office formerly worked out of the New York office but these agents have been transferred to the newly made district and are now under the supervision of Director Canfield with Albany as their headquarters.

Seeks Son Among Apache Indians

Arizona Cattleman Leads Expedition Authorized to Wipe Out Indian Band, Descendants of Famous Geronimo Band.

Douglas, Ariz., Jan. 5 (AP).—Treking into the wild ravines of the Mexican mountains south of the border here, Francisco Fimbres, a cattleman, today was leading 12 men bent on finding the rendezvous of a band of Apache Indians, with whom they expect to find Fimbres' kidnapped son.

The expedition, which carried supplies for two weeks, was authorized by Governor Fausto Topete of Sonora, to hunt down and wipe out the band.

Fimbres' son was carried away by the hostile Apache band in October, 1925, when the family was set upon while riding to the Fimbres' home on Bavispe river. Mrs. Fimbres was killed and her body carried away.

Fimbres and a daughter escaped to their home, but Mexican officials at Agua Prieta, Mexican border town near here, last night declared that two other persons were captured in the attack. The officials believed these persons also were being held prisoners by the Apaches, who live in the rocky ranges which form the border between the states of Chihuahua and Sonora.

The Agua Prieta officials said Governor Topete was moved to hunt down the Apaches by the additional reason of recent large property losses in the Bavispe country. Evidence pointed to the wild band as responsible for raids in which large droves of cattle had been stolen.

The Apaches are descendants of the fierce Geronimo band, which forty years ago terrorized Arizona. The band was broken up after many Indians were captured by United States soldiers. Apache survivors entrenched themselves deep in the mountains and continued their forays.

Work-Permit Boys in Industry

Labor Turnover Small Among Them —State Education Department Study Shows Continuation School Boy Sticks to Job.

That the working boy 14, 15, 16 or 17 years of age is not the irresponsible individual many people are wont to believe; that he does stick to one job; that he is not given to idleness and that there is a close connection between the last grade he completes in school and the number of positions he holds during his early working years are facts disclosed by a study of employed boys in the state of New York, recently completed by the Industrial Education Bureau of the State Education Department.

The study was concerned with 75,000 employed boys ranging in age from 14 to 17 years and employed throughout the state. Because these boys have gone to work before completing high school, the law requires that they attend a day part-time or continuation school four hours a week, either on their own or their employers' time. The school is held between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. and the instruction given combines both cultural and practical education in the general, commercial and industrial fields.

That these boys show a marked tendency to keep the first positions they secure is indicated by the fact that of the total number studied, 44 per cent had held but one job since leaving full-time school. Furthermore, 29 per cent of the boys had held but two jobs since leaving full-time school and 13.6 per cent three jobs. Combining these figures shows that 87 per cent of the boys had held three jobs or less since leaving full-time school. In some cases the boys had only been out of school a few weeks and in no case had the period been over three years. These figures indicate that the labor turnover of the employed boy of work permit age in industry compares very favorably with that of other older age groups in industrial life.

Another favorable point regarding the employed boy attending part-time school is that he is willing to work. The study shows that less than one per cent of the boys reporting had never worked. This also compares favorably with older age employed groups. In this connection the law itself helps to keep the unemployed boy off the streets and stimulates him into finding a job by requiring his attendance upon part-time school for a period of 24 hours a week during unemployment. Normal healthy boys who are not at work should certainly be required to go to school.

There was found to be a close relationship between the number of jobs the boy held and the last grade he completed in full-time school, provided the fifth and sixth grade graduates were omitted from consideration. This group includes a large proportion of overage and backward pupils many of whom drift from job to job all the time.

For working boys who had completed the eighth grade, 44 per cent were found to be in their first job and for those who had completed one year in high school before going to work, 45 per cent were still in their first positions. The percentage continues to rise as more grades are completed. Fifty-five per cent of boys completing second year high school and 61 per cent of those completing three years high school had held only one job. These percentages show the close connection between education and the number of jobs a boy going out into industry will hold. It is evident from this study that the schooling the boy receives in the upper grades gives him a market value which enables him to secure a better job than does the boy who leaves school in the lower grades. He also realizes the value of a good position and is more inclined to hold it.

FRANCE CANNOT KEEP THEM DOWN ON FARM

Paris, Jan. 5 (AP).—The crisis from which French agriculture is suffering is attributed in great part to lack of farm laborers despite the fact that 950,000 foreigners have been imported for farm work since 1914.

Farm laborers of both sexes are now coming from Poland, under contract, at the rate of 60,000 a year. A movement was started to encourage the migration of boys from the town to the country to offset the opposite drift.

PICTURE OF 13 NEW FASCISTI MELTS DUCE

Boscomarengo, Italy, Jan. 5 (AP).—Mussolini has broken his own rule about not sending his autographed photo to fathers of big families, or parents of triplets and twins. A group portrait of a Lombardi family of this town, father, mother and 13 lusty offspring, melted the Duce's heart. He sent his own in return, adorned with a warm congratulatory message in his bold hand.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, state director of health and physical education, believes women should do everything possible to make themselves beautiful; therefore they should refrain from competitive athletics. He approves the use of cosmetics.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y.—Look out, Miss Bobbie Trout; Viola Gentry, flying cashier, is intent upon breaking your endurance record of 112 hours, 55 minutes. Violet will try to stay up 22 hours.

Rome—The happily married Mr. Tunney has definitely and decidedly retired from the ring. Any story of his return, he adds in a message from Brioni, is palpably press agent.

New York—Jock Whitney, son of the late Payne Whitney, is as enthusiastic about aviation as his father was about horses. He hopes to fly to Los Angeles next month. Recently he flew his new machine to Thomasville, Ga., accompanied by Wilmer Stultz and mechanics. He is going to fly it back.

Washington—Four sets of brothers constitute the entire personnel of B Troop, 11th Cavalry, stationed at the Presidio, Monterey, Cal.

New York—Perhaps Alfred E. Smith once had secret ambitions to be a newspaper copy reader. He wrote his own headline over a speech in the recent campaign. Now he has had his picture taken at a window. As the shutters clicked he remarked: "The title of this picture, gentlemen, is: 'Looking at the sidewalks of New York'." Mr. and Mrs. Smith are to have for a home the ten top floor rooms of a 16-story Fifth avenue apartment which is under construction.

Chicago—The thermocoupe, a device one-thousandth the size of a drop of water, measures the heat of the stars. This invention, by Drs. Edwin Pittit and Seth Nicholson of Mount Wilson, is described in the Astrophysical Journel published by the University of Chicago. The hottest star is Betelgeuse.

New York—First round of a bout between liquor and speed: The dry steamship President Roosevelt, put on the Havana run by the shipping board because the British-owned Cunard line entered the service, booked 204 passengers for its trip today. The Cunarder Caronia had 240.

Newark, N. J.—Pete Branson flies over the Woolworth building daily in carrying mail between New York and Washington. He had a day off recently. He devoted most of it to a visit to the top of the Woolworth building in the laymen's manner, by elevator and stairs. "I got a big thrill," he says. "It's different when you go up in an elevator. You have more time to look around."

London—The Daily Mail says that Andrew W. Mellon has bought a Raphael Madonna for £200,000.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the First National Bank of Rondout, for the election of directors, will be held at the banking house, No. 10 Broadway, in the City of Kingston, on Tuesday, January 8, 1929, between the hours of 11 a. m. and 12 noon.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Smart Morning Frock for the Larger Women.

6340. Long waist portions are here joined to skirt portions, that boast of a group of plaits in front, which adds comfortable fulness to this model. The right front closes over the side of the left front in shaped outline. The sleeve is made with the usual inner seam, and with a short outer seam, which may be left open, and finished for an adjustable closing with buttons or snap fasteners. When engaged in household duties the sleeves may be thus turned back over the arm. Figured cotton percale was chosen for the model as pictured in blue and red, with binding of white bias tape. This style is excellent for printed tweed, wool rep and for linen; for zephyr and cotton pongee.

The pattern is cut in 9 sizes: 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52 and 54 inches bust measure. A 46 inch size will require 5¼ yards of 27 inch material. For the binding 3⅜ yards will be required. The width of the dress at the lower edge with plait fulness extended is 2½ yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

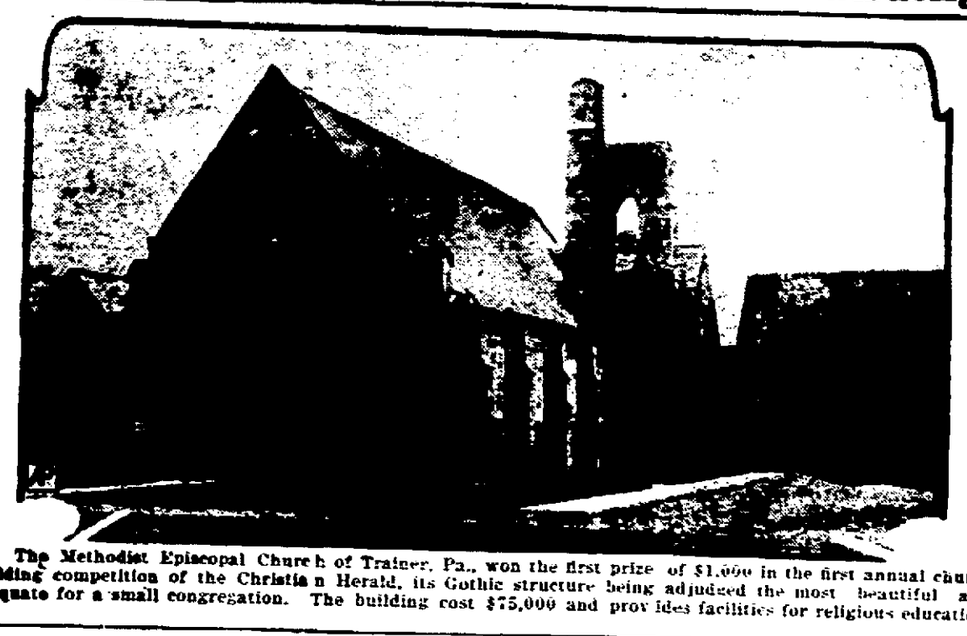
Historic Tree

At Diosgyor, Hungary, is a tree, a Turkish hazel, popularly believed to have been planted 550 years ago by Queen Marie (daughter of King Lajos the Great). Experts have examined the tree and establish the fact that its age actually corresponds to the age of the tree recorded to have been planted by this queen.

Wins Prize As Model Church Building



The Methodist Episcopal Church of Trainer, Pa., won the first prize of $1,000 in the first annual church building competition of the Christian Herald, its Gothic structure being adjudged the most beautiful and adequate for a small congregation. The building cost $75,000 and provides facilities for religious education.

WHEN THE SCHOOL-MOM ARRIVED

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

IT WAS shortly past noon when Joe Posson drove by the big blow-out. Glancing at his watch, he saw that he had scant time in which to reach Crystal City and bank the money his employer had entrusted to him before he must meet the train. The new school-mom whom Missus Fanning had selected for the Big Arroyo district was coming in on the local and must be conveyed with care to the Fanning ranch.

Joe felt deeply the importance of his two commissions, but his sense of pleasant self-gratulation cooled as he saw another outfit approaching.

"Old Man Raines' buckskins and Sile Robbins handlin' 'em," he said to himself.

The circumstance was untoward. At their last meeting Joe had promised Sile a thrashing and he saw clearly that he would have no time for it now.

"Just my luck," he muttered. "But I've got to attend to business even if I have to postpone the pleasure of lickin' Siles." And he sighed because of a wasted opportunity—a sigh which was nipped short by a spreading smile of surprise. For he now saw that Sile was not alone. Tucked in under his shoulder was a woman whose hat looked like an eager little flame against the barren overripeness of the fall prairie. Only a young woman would wear a hat like that. Where had Old Sile picked her up, and where was he headed for?

As the distance lessened Joe could see that the woman was not only young but pretty and that Sile seemed to be all taken up with her. Of course he would be. But what could such a nifty looking little piece of calico see in that hulking, gum-shoeing critter? Not that Joe cared. There was only one girl in the world for him and that was Dolly Bindle whose letters he carried with him night and day. Still the way the girl smiled up into Old Sile's mackerel-colored eyes was enough to assure one that her helpless innocence needed a true protector.

The Raines' buckskins came alongside the Fanning blacks and Siles at a motion from the girl stopped. A wondering gaze, blue as violets, was directed at Joe's handsome dark face from under the brim of the flaming little hat.

"Are you really Mr. Posson?" inquired a sweet voice. "And were you coming to meet me?"

Meet her! Great crow! Could this be the school-mom? And Old Sile had her! Joe's jaw dropped and he burned with fresh resentment.

"This is Miss Lucy Dow, Joe," said Sile patronizingly.

Joe swept off his hat, but his eyes were full of ire. The school-mom's name was Lucy Dow as he knew well, but he had received the impression from the letters he had heard Missus Fanning read that she would be both plain and middle-aged.

"You see," the girl explained, as she tucked back a strand of silken, corn-colored hair, "I made better connections than I expected. When I arrived in Crystal City I don't know what I should have done but for Mr. Robbins. He gave me lunch—" Joe snorted. Lunch! At Wes Howley's old chuck wagon! "And then he offered to take me to my destination. But now that we have met, Mr. Posson," she turned earnestly to Sile, "I won't put you to any further trouble, Mr. Robbins. Since he was coming to meet me I will go the rest of the way with him."

Sile glowered.

"Might as well go on now, I'm most there," he said.

The girl's blue eyes appealed to Joe. It was as if she whispered: "He is a queer fish. Please help me." Joe fluted betwixt pleasure and pain.

"I—I'm sorry," he stammered when Sile caught him up.

"Don't you remember I told you Joe was bound for Crystal City anyway?" he asked the girl. "He's got to mail a letter"—he grinned knowingly—"and bank some money. See that bulge on the left side of his coat? He's got forty-two hundred there. You know I told you my boss paid it to his boss yesterday. That's right, Joe, I saw it done."

Joe's chest swelled with rudely intaken breath. He clenched his hands. Wasn't there a thing on earth that Old Sile didn't snoop into?

"Oh, please don't quarrel!" Miss Lucy's blue eyes were full of tears. "I've always heard you westerners shoot at a word. You'll frighten me to death, you will so." She covered her face.

"Oh, laws!" Sile laughed reassuringly. "We don't carry guns when we are on peaceable business."

"Don't you? Haven't either of you a firearm?" Miss Lucy quavered, timidly peeping. If Joe had not felt so much like wiping up the ground with Sile he would have been amused. The poor little thing, he recalled, was from somewhere in Vermont. "Cross your heart?" she persisted plaintively, laying one hand on her own obviously palpitating breast. "Hope to die?"

"Sure." Sile obligingly crossed his big hairy paws on his chest. Joe with contemptuous toleration crossed his.

Instantly Miss Lucy's other hand came out of the deep pocket of her gray coat.

"Don't move," she commanded crisply while she handled the snub-nosed deadly thing of steel with convincing skill. "I don't fire to miss. You understand I'm in dead earnest."

"You're a queer school-mom," Joe sneered.

"School-mom! I'd be ashamed to be anything so ornery. I'm big Jake Dury's wife!" she snapped. "You-all heern of him? proudly. "Get out of that wagon," she bade Joe. "I want your team for my getaway. And hand over the money—pronto!"

Joe got out of the buckboard and she got in. He handed her his wallet. Sile might have grabbed her then, all business though she was, but all he could do was to shake and giggle. She seized the lines and whip and was gone.

"My poor horses!" groaned Joe. "I wish they'd run away and break her neck, but she sure knows how to drive."

"Do you reckon she is that hell-cat Big Jake brought up from Tulsa?" quavered Sile. The very name of that famous bandit subdued him.

"'Pears like it—got any speed in those buckskins?" Joe asked.

"I'll show you," answered Sile.

She was out of sight all the way. They entered Crystal City on two wheels scattering dogs and chickens in the narrow street. The local was in. Joe made for it, but the two dusty coaches were already moving. He raked their windows with his glance. At one he caught a glimpse of a white face under a red hat which looked back at him with a grimace of rage and hate.

The blacks stood reeking with sweat and beside them was a tall, sensible, spectacled woman, who gravely considered Joe as he approached.

"I reckon you are Miss Lucy Dow?" he said.

"I am," she said pointing to a trunk bearing her name.

At that instant Sile appeared.

"Telegraph! Catch her at Larrimore!"

"Oh, let her go," he said.

"With $4,200." bawled Sile.

Joe reached into his trousers pocket and pulled out a role of bills. Sile staggered.

"But what was in the wallet?" he asked.

"Dolly's letters." Joe's tone was exceeding mournful. "I've kept 'em in that wallet since I got the first one. I sure hated to lose them, but I reckon they was sacrified in a good cause."

Then he proceeded toward the bank, while the real school-mom for Big Arroyo held the horses.

World's Finest Gems Bought by Americans

One hears a great deal of the size and magnificence of the jewels in the possession of oriental and Russian potentates, and certainly many of these famous jewels are as fine as they are large; but not so many as we in the West are apt to believe.

The greatest part of the wealth of the world in gems today is right here in America—an astounding proportion of it; I should say between one-third and one-half—and we not only possess the greatest quantity of gems and the largest proportion of big ones, but our standard of quality is far higher not only than that of the East but even of Europe.

Many of the celebrated gems of the East are stones which an American woman would not buy, let alone wear. Some of the emeralds in the Russian crown jewels, for example, instead of being what is properly termed a gem are the whole large crystal—that is when an emerald crystal some four inches long is found, some of the foreign lapidaries will facet and polish the whole enormous thing although it may be uneven in color, with fissures and inclusions. It is the size that impresses them, and one overpowering stone of not very good quality appeals to them more than a small but perfect jewel.

A more discriminating taste demands that the one beauty spot in that great crystal—the tiny, unflawed intensely green bit that constitutes the true emerald—be cut out for use as a gem and the rest discarded. That is why emeralds, if they approach perfection, can command almost $1,000,000 an ounce—not a high price when one realizes that perhaps only one ten-thousandth part of the original crystal cut to produce that ounce is here represented.

However, no stone varies more in quality—from the most worthless at $5 a carat up to gems worth well over $5,000 a carat. A warning to the amateur buyer to watch his step.—Dr. George Kunz in the Saturday Evening Post.

—Oh, Daddy!

It was nice and quiet in the movie theater. They sat near the center of the lower floor. A star appearing in person was doing a combination of "shimmie" and "snake dance." Little Allen, age three, decided to talk in the far-reaching stage whisper of a child. "I like a dirl like that. I wish I had a dirl like that." When the chuckles had subsided, he added: "If I had a dirl like that I would take her a ride in daddy's car."

Maybe the wild waves got that way from the sights on the beach.

INFLAMED NERVES MADE HEALTHFUL

Nerve inflammation, or neuritis, is inflammation of a nerve. It is usually progressive in character, the process of Nature being to fill the blood vessels of the inflamed area with serum. As the heat of the inflammation continues, this serum dries up and there is degeneration of nerve and cell tissue. This is a very dangerous stage to permit to develop.

The very nature of neuritis indicates its nerve source. Neuritis is caused by spinal nerve congestion at the joints of the spine. It is obvious, therefore, that Chiropractic is the logical method to employ for neuritis, as it overcomes the basic cause of this disease.

There is repeated evidence that sufferers from other diseases have also found in Chiropractic the thing that has freed them of the suffering. Be on the safe side by today arranging for a Chiropractic examination.

PRONUNCIATION OF THE "R."

Failure to pronounce the "r" in such words as her, here and car is complained of by a correspondent of the New York Times who, curiously enough, regards it as a recent tendency in this country in imitation of the speech of the upper-class English. In part he writes:

Of late there has been in this country an effort or movement to foist this British r or rather denial of r upon American speech. Persistent effort is made in many of our public high schools to teach children to say he-a, fa-a, fahm and huhd (hearth). To pronounce her, carr, heard and card with any audible r is held to be a mark of provincialism and lack of culture, or culcha. Of course I do not advocate the exaggerated r which in the Central and Western States leads people not only to say herr, Saturrday and farrm, but even to inject an r where it has no right to be, for example making wash become warsh and Emma become Emmar. The attempt to foist the English r on us in our public schools should, I think, be discontinued. It does not make for genuine culture in America to seek to transplant here a foreign habit of speech.

The "transplanting" must have occurred with the coming of many of the first colonists, for "r"—rolling has not been heard in the Southern States for generations and has long since lapsed in other parts of the country also. Whether the correspondent is right or wrong, the practice he complains of is neither new nor necessarily a sign of modern English influence. Incidentally, it may be worth while to note that German-born Walter Damrosch (who married a daughter of James G. Blaine) never announces over the radio the next number-r of his musical program but always the next "numbah."

"BOSS BUCKRA" ON SAPELO.

The "salt water niggers" of Sapelo Island, off the coast of Georgia, are reported as characterizing President Coolidge, who has gone there for a rest, as "de boss buckra (white man) in dis worl'," and as remarking: "Bin high buckra h-yuh many time, but dis pure tek de haid off'n de 'gatah." Yet there is historical basis for some slight modification of this compliment to Mr. Coolidge from Sea Island darkies in their "undefiled Gullah." For Lafayette first landed in America at Winyah Bay, General Nathaniel Greene lived on Cumberland Island and General Lighthorse Harry Lee was buried there. Count Pulaski's bones rest on St. Helen's, and General Oglethorpe used the islands as a basis to repel the Spaniards from their last attempt at dominion in what is now United States territory.

But of course the times and the conditions are changed, for the President rests in the baronial mansion of a northern millionaire whom the 250 Sea-Island negroes attached to his great estate address as "Mahssa" (master). Only the soft air, the sea, and the island topography remain the same. "These sea islands," writes a contemporary observer, "stud the waters off Brunswick like emeralds set on a sapphire slab. Save for the 'voice of the rice,' the rustle of the great serpents, all about them is kindly beauty. Their liveoaks, with trailing cloaks of grey Spanish moss; their green palmetto; their roads of shell and houses of Castilian stucco make a sub-tropical picture as beautiful to the eye jaded by the North in winter as they did to the sea-worn Spanish adventurers and polyglot buccaneers who first made landing there."

It appears that twenty States have not adopted the standard danger and caution signs and route markers on Federal roads, and that four States are entirely lacking in this respect. This announcement calls to mind the recent boast of a man from Ohio that his State does not require drivers to have licenses, which, if true, would mean that amateurs are allowed to go on the highways with little or no training. Uniformity in motor-car regulations throughout the country would appear to be more needful than uniformity in any other particular.

The President of Brazil was named after the first President of the United States. Having had a keen interest in this country from boyhood, his reception of Mr. Hoover was exceptionally cordial. His full name is Washington Luis Pereira de Sousa.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

BY

James W. Barton, M.D.

DEAD TEETH DANGEROUS.

You will remember very distinctly as the dentist bored away at your tooth, getting gradually down low about the "nerve", that you felt that insofar as that tooth was concerned there would be no more trouble once that "nerve" was removed.

And this was the general belief until the discovery of the X-ray, which as you know shows up the root of the tooth and the surrounding tissue. It was thus learned that despite the removal of the nerve which really means nerve, blood and lymph vessels, that an abscess often formed at the root of these "devitalized" teeth as they are called, and that abscess could cause much more serious trouble than just in the surrounding tissue.

Dental research men, notably Dr. Weston Price of Cleveland, have done a great deal of work along this line.

Cultures were made from these abscesses and tissue surrounding them, and organisms were grown therefrom which when injected into small animals caused disease.

For a considerable time it was thought that if a root canal in a tooth were filled or almost completely filled, and there was no abscess at the root, that that particular tooth was safe, was doing no harm to the body and should not be removed.

However these research men, pushing their investigations further, were able to grow organisms from teeth that had the nerves removed, but showed no abscess by the X-ray.

Even these organisms were able to produce disease in animals.

What does this mean to you?

That the old idea you and I had, that once the nerve was removed we were not only going to be free from pain but any other trouble also, is a mistake, and that the removal of the nerve simply leaves a tooth that may easily give us trouble.

As Dr. W. M. Gardner says, "teeth with healthy nerves do not abscess or become infected."

There is only one lesson here and that is that if you have some "filled teeth" with nerves removed, even if they are not troubling you the slightest, you should get an X-ray of them, because no matter how experienced your dentist, he needs this or other aid, to detect the condition at the root of the tooth.

FRANCE WOULD KEEP PANTHEON EXCLUSIVE

Paris (AP).—A movement has been started by several deputies to keep the Pantheon exclusive for the truly great.

Politics, they say, should be eliminated from the considerations that decide the admission of the ashes of illustrious dead to the official mausoleum. They also insist that measures be taken to guard against sudden fits of public opinion that are likely to be followed by quick reactions.

They propose that a two-thirds vote of both houses of parliament be required for the transfer of any man's remains to the monument, and that none be voted on until ten years or more after his death.

This movement is a belated reaction to the removal of the remains of Emile Zola, the realistic romancer, to the Pantheon four years ago. The procession that followed Zola's bier was composed largely of extremists and the only banner shown was the revolutionary flag.

Take Judgment Debtor Anywhere

Legal Code Section Is Changed by Legislature Allows Debtor to Be Summoned to Any Part of State Without Payment of Witness Fee or Any Expenses.

Arthur B. Ewig, attorney of this city, has written to Senator Wicks calling attention to a recent change in procedure in the New York state courts which concerns not only members of the bar but laymen of the state as well.

In effect, Mr. Ewig urges some legislative action whereby it will be impossible for judgment debtors to be summoned from their home county to any other county of the state for the purpose of being examined. At present a judgment debtor can be required to travel to any county for examination, without payment of even the usual witness fee, much less any mileage.

Mr. Ewig's letter to Senator Wicks is as follows:

January 3, 1929

Honorable Arthur H. Wicks, Senator
Senate Chambers
Albany, New York.
My dear Senator:

I want to take this opportunity to bring to your attention a matter of particular interest to practicing attorneys of this state and of utmost importance to its citizens.

The Civil Practice Act, Article 45 thereof, contains numerous provisions relative to the examination of judgment debtors, and other third parties in proceedings supplementary to execution. Up until the 1st of September, 1928, such third parties or judgment debtors could not be compelled to attend such examination in any county other than that of his residence. Section 787 of the Civil Practice Act was repealed by laws of 1928, Chapter 644. This is the section, which previously provided as follows:

"In what county attendance for examination may be compelled. If the judgment debtor or other person, required to attend and be examined, as prescribed in this article, or the officer of a corporation required to attend in its behalf, is, at the time of the service of the order upon him, a resident of the state, or then has an office within the state for the regular transaction of business in person, he cannot be compelled to attend, pursuant to the order or to any adjournment, at a place without the county wherein his residence or place of business is situated."

No other section was substituted, making it appear as though the repeal of Section 787 was deliberate and with knowledge of the effect of such repeal upon the particular practice contemplated by Article 45.

This repeal now permits parties to be examined in any of the numerous counties of this state, regardless of his place of residence. It now permits attorneys of New York city to procure orders directing residents of the city of Buffalo, for example, to appear in New York city for examinations, and this is permitted, apparently, regardless of the amount, provided, of course, that the amount of the judgment is above the sum of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars. Although this section was repealed, no other was substituted or added whereby such a party sought to be examined could insist upon and receive even the customary witness fee from and to his place of residence to the county wherein he is sought to be examined.

A number of cases, disclosing the hardship caused by the repeal of this section, has arisen in Ulster county, where Ulster county citizens have been directed to appear for examination in greater New York city. I know of at least one instance where an application has been made before a justice of the supreme court of the First department, when the question as to where a debtor may be examined, was directly brought up, and the justice, in deciding this particular matter, held that in view of this repeal it was proper to direct that a party appear for examination before any court and judge out of which an execution had been issued, regardless of the place of residence, of the party to be examined, and that the courts could offer no relief.

It is not necessary to go further into details as to the general effect of this recent amendment. It is not necessary to mention the hardships that will be imposed upon honest, though poor, debtors who have not the means of paying judgments against them, not alone to defray the expense of journeying many miles about the state for the purpose of being examined.

Some change should be made, and such change can be made only by the legislature. I am taking the opportunity writing to you to bring this situation to your attention and requesting your support for the passage of such measures as will remedy this condition. It would seem to me that the former Section 787 should be re-enacted, or in the alternative other provision made relieving the hardship caused by the repeal thereof. Perhaps one means of relief would be the enactment of a law whereby the judgment debtor or third parties sought to be examined must be paid the usual witness fees, if the examination is to be had in a county, other than that where the party resides.

Much of what has been written here is, I believe, the attitude of the majority of the Ulster County Bar.

May some favorable action on your part be expected?

Respectfully yours,
ARTHUR B. EWIG.

Budapest (AP).—Hungarians who seek death by suicide now find a happy home in the beautiful archducal castle which the government has converted into a Suicides' home.

Here would-be suicides have comfortable living accommodations, relief from mental worries and inducement toward a brighter view of existence. Large, airy, sunny rooms, cheerfully furnished, are provided and inmates are given mental treatment when necessary.

These mental clinics, as they are called, were established by the government to check the ever-growing number of suicides due to unemployment, financial reverses, sickness and disappointed love. The inmates are called guests and are provided with libraries, small moving picture performances, radios and a daily orchestra concert.

Most of the women sent to these clinics are victims of unfortunate love affairs, and these are given special treatment by women psychologists. Every effort is made to induce the women to take a new interest in life and to forget their unhappy situation.

In most cases a week's treatment is sufficient to effect a complete cure. Hypnotism is sometimes used in order to induce a sane and healthy outlook on life. Games, outdoor sports and all kinds of mental diversions are encouraged.

Special attention is devoted to the large number of men who have sought suicide because of unemployment. It is found that most of these men are married and, finding themselves without means of supporting their families, have turned to suicide as the only way out of their trouble. The government makes a complete investigation into the men's circumstances and an attempt is made to find them positions and to give them a new start in life.

"Beyond all Expectations!"

-say those who have seen the Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History

-a Six in the price range of the four!

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History has now been seen and inspected by millions of people in every section of America—and everywhere it has been hailed as exceeding all expectations.

Many looked forward to finding a motor of exceptional design—but none expected a six-cylinder valve-in-head engine which develops 32% more power than its famous predecessor, higher speed and faster acceleration, and which delivers better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Many anticipated numerous factors contributing to ease and safety of control—but were amazed at such quality car features as full ball-bearing steering mechanism with latest flat-type wheel, foot controlled headlamps and newly designed, quiet, easy-acting four-wheel brakes.

Many were confident that the new Chevrolet would be a comfortable car—but were delightfully surprised to find such outstanding comfort features as adjustable driver's seat in all closed models, fully cushioned seat backs and larger, roomier bodies.

And although everyone expected that Fisher genius would contribute a new note of beauty in the new Chevrolet—no one ever dreamed that it would be possible to achieve in any low-priced car the elements of beauty, luxury and safety so worthy of direct comparison with the finest and costliest automobiles.

If you have not already made a personal inspection of the new Chevrolet, we urge you to do so at your earliest convenience. The beautiful new models are now on display on our showroom floor—and you are cordially invited to call.

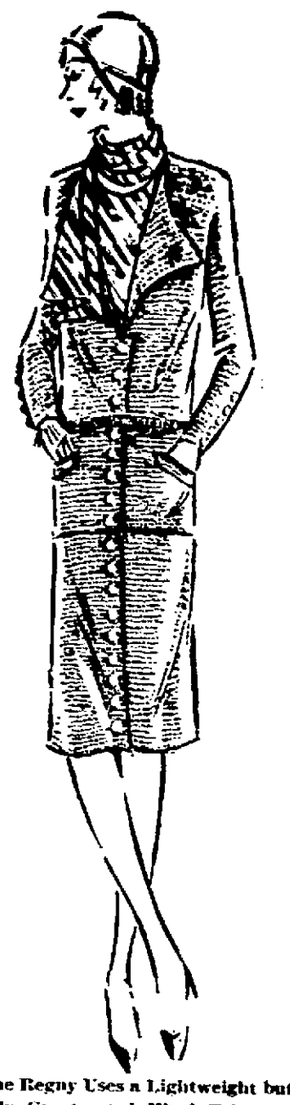
ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

THE COSTUME SUIT IS ONE OF THE IMPORTANT SPRING PREDICTIONS

New York—So many factors enter into the anticipated success of the revival of the suit that one is at a loss to catalogue them. That the time seems ripe to reinstate suits is generally admitted, not such suits as we have had for several seasons and which were frankly destined only for a sports career, but the more formal type known as the costume suit.



Jane Regny Uses a Lightweight but Closely Constructed Wool Tricot in Fine Mixture of White and Blue. The Narrow Belt Is of Blue Leather, the Gilet and Scarf Are of Pearl Gray Flat Crepe With Satin Stripes in Darker Gray and Blue. Crystal Buttons. (Copyright, 1929, by Fairchild).

Paris seems determined to bring this type to the attention of smart women and is utilizing charming silks as well as many woolens in fashioning it. The unlined coat is one factor, the peplum presents another.

Paquin is responsible for a suit, the jacket of which has a peplum which raises the front line in accord with the general feeling for that development. The suit is fashioned of banana colored broadcloth, its cleverly cut collar one with the jacket, bordered with flat black caracul. Flat furs find a place even on spring suits, fair enough since spring coats are frequently fur trimmed.

While the short jacket is expressive of the average feeling there are suits especially of a more formal character, the jackets of which near the three-quarter mark.

The use of novelty fabrics, woolen mixtures and the like provides another interest. Generally speaking the suit has some sort of a waistline, additional belts being favored.

Soft and Tailored Versions of the Midseason Daytime Frock Introduce Plain, Checked, and Printed Fabrics

FEMININE INCONSISTENCIES ARE RETAINED IN THE CURRENT VOGUE

New York.—After a number of seasons in which the smart and the would-be-smart alike were garbed in black crepe de Chine, it is stimulating to a degree to view the varied and variegated fabrics slated for spring acclaim.

The repeated selection of bright crepe to wear under the fur coat points the way to a continuation of lively colors when fur coats are laid aside.

The most startling news deals with the victory of color over neutral tones as applied to woolens. Since it is expected that women will wear reds and greens and blues, to say nothing of purple woolens, it is not unreasonable to suppose that they will judge only such silks worthy to rival them as are vividly colored.

It is impossible to visualize a spring fashion pageant without fabric interest. This is not alone confined to color or design, but includes many interesting and unusual weaves. If silks are to be used for coats and for suits, which seems assured, woolens are to be used with equal enthusiasm for dresses. It is even possible to duplicate the pattern of one in the other—not only possible but highly desirable.

While there are tailored frocks and ensembles to no end, the prevailing idea is that they be feminine in spite of it. When the lines are not helpful in establishing this, the material is expected to offset the severity. Even the tailored frock and the costume suit so far step out of their role as to waiver in the hemline, usually dropping below par at the back.

Banana a Plant Oddity

The first paradox about the banana is that it is a tree, by virtue of its size and height, without a true trunk, says the Nature Magazine. The tallest banana plants measure 40 feet from the tips of the leaves to the ground. In Jamaica they attain about 25 feet, the first 15 feet of which is approximately the remarkable "pseudostem," or false trunk; the remainder the blades of the huges leaves which tower above it.

PIANIST SAYS U. S. MUSIC LEADS WORLD

Paris, (AP).—The noted pianist Serge Rachmaninoff told his Paris interviewers that New York had become the musical capital of the world. American concert audiences, he said, were bigger and more appreciative of good music than those of any other country.

"Year by year, the thing that impresses me more and more about America," he said, "is the wonderful improvement in public taste and appreciation that has taken place within an astonishingly short period of time. When I first went to America in 1909 audiences were not one-tenth as large or as discriminating as they are now.

"Within a few years America may justly claim the largest and most appreciative musical public in the whole world."

New York has replaced Berlin as the bright particular heart of music, Rachmaninoff added, and Philadelphia possesses one of the greatest orchestras the world has ever heard.

"At present New York is undoubtedly the musical center of the world. It has taken the place that Berlin occupied before the war but it is more brilliant than Berlin ever was.

"And Philadelphia! Philadelphia has the finest orchestra I have ever heard at any time or any place in my whole life. I don't know that I would be exaggerating if I said that it was the finest orchestra the world has ever heard."

LOST ROMAN CITY IS LOCATED IN GERMANY

Freiburg, Jan. 5 (AP).—Tarodunum, an ancient Roman town fo which historians and geographers have been searching for centuries, has at last been found at Zarten, a village near here.

Recently excavations were made near Zarten, which lies on the main road from Upper Alsace to the Black Forest. They brought to light building materials, crockery, millstones and other ancient Roman paraphernalia which leave no doubt in the experts' minds that the site of Tarodunum has at last been found.

Cozy and warm, aglow with many lamps — expressing indoors the hospitality and charm of its exterior — that's the ideal home. Walk through the gate, up the path and into a house of comfort and convenience where working and living is full of pleasure. It is full of pleasure because it has been planned to make washing, cooking, cleaning and other household tasks easier; to make leisure hours truly enjoyable.

When a house has been wired according to Red Seal specifications, working hours are shorter; entire meals can be prepared at the table with electrical appliances, in full view of the family; many lamps can adorn the rooms as is the present vogue. And in order to attach one appliance another need not be detached. The wiring specifications are so intelligently planned that there are convenience outlets throughout the house for all electrical needs — lights and labor saving devices may all function together. The Red Seal plan is for old homes as well as new ones. Any electrical league member will be glad to give you the details of this plan.

WOMAN DUELISTS BATTLE FOR LOVE, RECORDS SHOW

One Hundred Such Affairs in the Past Century, Says Italian Fencing Master.

Rome.—The two duels recently fought in Rome between Prince Potenziani, ex-governor of the city, and Prince Lanceliotti, who is sixty-two; that between him and the Marchesa Sambuy, who is sixty-one, has set duelists talking about famous feats fought by women.

Maestro Jacopo Gelli, a local fencing master, who has trained many youths in the art of using sword and rapier, asserts that more than a hundred duels have been fought by women within the last century. And 95 per cent of them were for the love of a man. This is not the case with male duelists. They do fight for beauty, but they often fight for imaginary or real insults, which have nothing to do with their women folk.

Maestro Gelli says that in 1890 two girls were killed in duels. Lizzie Harbora killed her rival, Mary Prenster, in Budapest; and Isabela Hernandez killed hers, Rosa Gusman, in Mexico. In each case the young man who had the misfortune to be loved too well left the victorious maidens and married girls who did not know a rapier from a broadsword. Isabela opened a fencing school for women, and had a poor lot of men forever after.

Twenty years ago at Lemberg, Poland, two women, both employed in the same business house, fell in love with a certain army captain, known to posterity as Hans. They walked to a wood on the outskirts of the city, each with a case of duelling pistols, and decided it that way. Hans had become engaged to marry each of them. One was slightly wounded; the opponents made friends again and agreed that, after all, Hans was not worth worrying about.

Youth Runs Away.

When in Mexico, Marta Duran was killed in a duel by her rival, Janna Luna, the young man. Don Rafael Higueima, was so horrified when he saw poor Marta with a deep sword wound in her bosom that he ran away and was never seen again. Much the same thing happened on the south coast of France sixty years ago when one of the gentle duelists was wounded in the right arm. The young man married another girl altogether.

In a Sixteenth century duel, where the injured girl woke her rival up and handed her a sword, with a curt order to "come outside and have it out," the young man, Count di Blom, tried to intervene as the duel was going on, and was wounded for his pains.

Two Spanish girls, cousins, fought a desperate duel with swords near Valencia some years ago. One was killed, but the young man over whom the duel was fought escaped to the Canary Isles and married somebody else.

Catalpa Victim of Moths

To be eaten alive is the fate of many of our catalpa trees. Tremendous ravages by the catalpa sphinx—the caterpillars or larvae of one of our somber hued hawk moths—have stripped their boughs of foliage and left them bare and unsightly, says the Nature Magazine. Sometimes the trees die from these severe defoliations, and occasionally entire plantations have been destroyed.

$1375 at the factory

THE world's first truly great motor car of moderate cost now becomes a car still finer (. . . at a price still lower!

A new Commander by Studebaker, builder of champions! Worthy heir to the laurels of its gallant predecessor—The Commander which traveled 25,000 miles in less than 23,000 minutes. This record has never been successfully challenged save by Studebaker's great President Straight Eight!

By the worth of a score of betterments, this new Commander merits its heritage of honors. It is the greatest automobile ever built and sold at its price.

New Beauty . . New Comfort . . New Safety

Artists in coachcraft have deftly re-directed its excellent body lines into effects of arresting beauty. Body mouldings contribute to the look of length, of lowness, of eager speed. Color harmonies new to motordom, add to the new Commander's beauties, and enhance its graces.

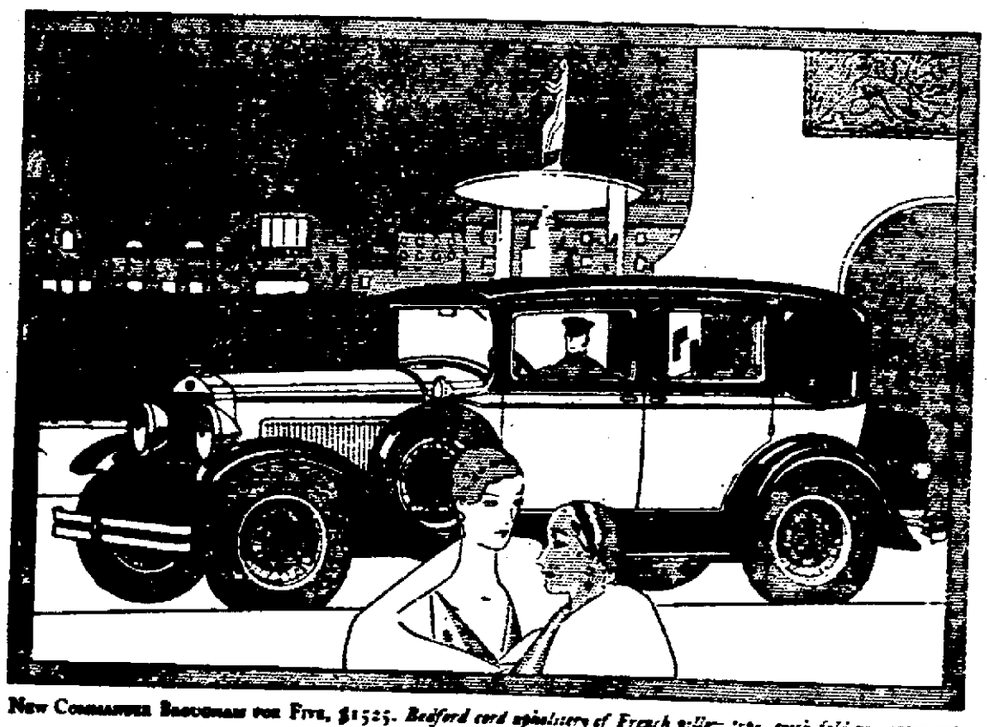
The new Commander rides more easily—seats its passengers more comfortably—clings to the road at high speed even more steadily. New ball bearing spring shackles and larger hydraulic shock absorbers. Wider, deeper, softer cushions. A lower center of gravity. A safety steering wheel that cannot fail. Brakes silken-smooth yet powerful. Non-shatterable safety windshield.

Adding new fame to this famous car:

DOUBLE-DROP FRAME
WIDER DOORS
WIDER REAR SEAT
NEW, LONGER, LOWER LINES
NON-SHATTERABLE WINDSHIELD
ADJUSTABLE FRONT SEAT
SAFETY STEEL-CORE STEERING WHEEL
AUTOMATIC CHOKE CONTROL
BALL BEARING SPRING SHACKLES
HYDRAULIC SHOCK ABSORBERS

Never was Studebaker's engineering genius and unique One-Profit manufacture better exemplified. Never was Studebaker's 77-year-old tradition of manufacturing integrity entrusted more safely.

Here is a six-cylinder motor car utterly without peer in its price class, because it is faster, more enduring, more beautiful, more comfortable. It is a Studebaker and a champion. There are no finer motor car credentials than these.



New Commander Brougham for Five, $1525. Bedford cord upholstery of French pillow type, with folding center arm rest in rear seat. Commander Sedan, $1375. Prices at the factory. Equipment, other than standard, extra.

Oscar and Staff Attend Last Party

Swan Song of Waldorf-Astoria Organization, Created by Oscar Tschirky, as 2,000 Men and Women Attend Farewell.

The somber halls and massive dining rooms of the old Waldorf-Astoria trembled last night, says the New York Evening Sun of Friday, with the surging and shouting of 2,000 paper-hatted, laughing men and women who participated in what was, perhaps the last extensive celebration the historic hotel will know.

Certainly it is the last at which the world-famous Waldorf organization will be present, for it was the farewell reception and dance of the management to the staff, and W. P. Taylor, Jr., the hotel manager, whose eyes glistened despite his attempted gayety, said that the organization is already starting to break up as fast as its members can obtain jobs elsewhere.

For Oscar Tschirky, famous maitre d'hotel, it was an evening of mixed emotions. The Waldorf organization was his gradual creation of a lifetime, and this was its swan song.

Oscar himself, with Mrs. Tschirky on his arm, led the grand march finally, after a good deal of protest. He was too stirred inwardly, he said.

"It is too terrible even to talk about," he sighed, and his eyes were bright. "This wonderful place. It is hard still for me to believe it. It could happen only in New York."

Offered New Hotels.

He particularly regretted in addition to his sentimental feeling, the breaking up of the organization he has perfected. Many interests have offered to build him a hotel, he revealed, but said he didn't care to wait three years until one was ready.

There is a faint possibility, Mr. Taylor said, that the name and traditions of the hotel might be preserved by a new company, but he did not see how the organization could be held together during the formative stage.

Of characters in the ballroom there were plenty. Up in the royal box, which she had scrubbed many a time for the celebrities of three generations, proudly sat Queen Lizzie, the hotel's veteran of the pail, radiating splendor from the Christmas tree ornaments in her hair.

The gayest person present—and the only older one who did not seem sad—was old Alphonse, chief of the carving tables, perhaps the oldest employe, who worked for Oscar at the old Hoffman House before they both came to the Waldorf. Alphonse—and after thirty-two years no one knew his last name—is diminutive, devoid of a single hair, and wears spectacles, but he grinned and tired out more than one flapper partner in the dancing.

Others were: peppy Ezra Bingham, the chief engineer who, because he's usually invisible, had trouble getting in; Vincenzo (Jimmy) Margaro, the tiny chief bootblack, lost in the shadows of his eight tall children; Miss N. M. Foley, chief housekeeper, who greeted each of the 200 women and 300 men under her by name; Paul Barres, lightweight pugilist from France, and member of the food department; James Lunnay of the check room, whose daughter, Mildred Van Dorn, dances for Ziegfeld; Fred (Scottie) Cannon, the "International bellboy," friend of King George and Charles A. Stoneham, and official greeter at the ball; Peter Brady, the ancient carriage man, who is believed to have a history of his own; Hamburger, the veteran head waiter, friend of hundreds of celebrities, dancing with his grown daughter; Lizzie Dumm, from the check room, and Tony, the head dishwasher.

Caste distinctions were forgotten and the bus boy danced with the assistant manager's wife. When the orchestra finally played Auld Lang Syne, however, the merriment vanished, and a large number of the dancers wept unashamed.

New Auburns on Exhibition Here

The management of the Kingston Auburn Sales at 526 Broadway have just received a carload of the new 1929 series Auburns and they are now on display at their show rooms.

The new Auburn models are strictly in keeping with the Auburn policy, that being not to make any radical changes from year to year in the design of the body, which gives them a large trade-in value.

The new Auburn six sedan is the "longest and strongest" car on the market at the price for which it sells and it is expected it will be one of the biggest sellers of the year.

The new 8-90, an eight cylinder sedan, is also shown and is one of the lowest priced eights in the auto market today. The car on display at the show rooms is a special sedan equipped with wire wheels and a special paint job.

The Kingston Auburn Sales extend a cordial invitation to all to visit the show rooms at any time and inspect the new car and to drive one, whether they be in the market for a car or not.

Natural Law Provides Inlet in Coral Reefs

Coral reefs surrounded many of the islands in the Pacific. They protect the lowlands from the washing of the waves, and the still waters inclosed by them are the only harbors of refuge for ships. The reefs themselves furnish the greatest peril to navigators, and if there were no inlet through which a vessel could enter their protected circle they would be a danger and nothing else. But almost every reef has such an inlet. It is a necessary result of the laws under which the forces of nature work. To understand this, we must see how these reefs are formed.

Chemically, the reef corals are almost pure carbonate of lime, the substance of ordinary limestone and marble. The reef grows as the shell of the oyster or of any other shellfish grows. It is itself the common and undivided shell of innumerable polypi, or minute insects, which are being reproduced and are dying in successive generations. These tiny beings all get their living from the waters of the sea. It is from this source also that they derive the salts of lime from which they secrete the bony structure that remains after the animal is dead.

The coral polypi live in fresh water. Their food supply is brought to them by the waves and currents of the sea. As a result it is found that directly opposite the mouth of a stream from the island the reef does not grow. There will be the outlet to the inclosed waters.—Washington Star.

Great Soldier Noted for Avaricious Trait

Men have often possessed distorted ideas of thrift. The duke of Marlborough, noted for his niggardly ways, would resort to almost any means to obtain money.

It is related that he reproached a servant for having lit four candles in his tent when Prince Eugene visited him for a conference just before the battle of Blenheim. It is also related that when the duke was ill at Bath, he insisted on going on foot to his lodgings in order to save sixpence for a chair to carry him.

Swift once wrote of the duke's meanness. He said he would wager that in all of his great campaigns he was never known to "lose his own baggage."—Thrift Magazine.

Mistletoe in Legend

The use of mistletoe in the Christian church was long forbidden because of its pagan associations. It is said to have been a tree until its wood was used to make the cross of Christ, when it shrank to its present proportions and became a parasite, growing about other trees.

It was the object of many superstitions among the old Norsemen and the ancient Druid priests of Britain, and some of these beliefs are retained as a part of our modern Christian customs. Although some of its associations were once evil it now means happiness, safety and good fortune as long as it is not beneath our feet.—Washington Star.

Ocean Aerial Traffic Seen As Dependent On Weather Service

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett (below), chief of the Navy's bureau of aeronautics, says the future of trans-oceanic air travel depends on the development of comprehensive ocean weather service. Maps should be available to air navigators, he says. Special equipment, such as the aerological laboratories on the U. S. S. Wright (above) would help form a network of weather stations at sea.

Sonnenberg New Wrestling Champ

"Strangler" Lewis Disqualified in Match With Former Dartmouth Football Player—Champion Forced to Crawl Outside of Ropes.

Boston, Jan. 5 (AP).—Today had a new champion, "Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg, the former Dartmouth football player.

Sonnenberg won the heavyweight mat title when Ed "Strangler" Lewis was disqualified in their match here last night. Sonnenberg had taken the first fall with his famous "flying tackle" in 29 minutes 46 seconds, and when they returned to the ring, he tried to drop the champion again with the same tactics.

The ruined football player, who continued his gridiron career with the Providence Steamrollers, butted Lewis seven times in rapid succession, forcing the champion to fall or crawl outside of the ropes to escape punishment.

Each time he sought safety outside he was ordered to return by Referee Leon Burbank. That official gave Lewis ample warning and, after the seventh butt, counted him out of his title, which he turned over to Sonnenberg to the great delight of the 20,000 spectators who filled the spacious Boston Garden to the last seat.

Many of the seatholders were persons of prominence and thousands of them were young college graduates and students, a faction which became interested in wrestling because of Sonnenberg and whose patronage moved the sport out of a dingy Boston hall into one of the largest sport palaces in the country.

Indications today were that this element in the wrestling game would follow along with Sonnenberg, its mat idol, and the promoters looked forward to staging many profitable bouts during his championship.

The decision, which stripped Lewis of the he-jeweled championship belt as well as his title, drew the vociferous protests of Billy Sandow, the "Strangler's" manager and confidant.

Sandow claimed that his man was never entirely out of the ring, and that he had at least a foot or leg inside at all times and that Lewis was willing and eager to continue the bout when he was counted out by Burbank.

During the bout, which lasted 38 minutes and 6 seconds, Sonnenberg was on the offense at all times and had to force matters to stir the cautious Lewis into action. When the "Strangler" did get going, he tried for victory with a series of vicious headlocks, all of which Sonnenberg broke or slipped free.

Lewis was said to have received $50,000 for his night's work. Sonnenberg's share ran about $8,000. Total receipts exceeded $42,000, a record figure for this section of the country, where wrestling has long been considered rural entertainment.

The former champion had held the title for nearly ten years with one brief interim following his defeat by Wayne Munn, the big Iowan. He regained it from Joe Stetcher in St. Louis in February, 1927.

It was the second meeting between Sonnenberg and Lewis. Last summer in this city Sonnenberg threw Lewis once but in attempting his famous flying tackle for the second fall, the "Strangler" dodged and Sonnenberg sailed through the ropes to the concrete floor.

He was unconscious for hours afterward and did not recover for several weeks.

BILL FREEMAN OF LOCAL BOXING STABLE WINS IN N. Y.

Bill Freeman, colored heavyweight of the McCabe-Conway boxing stable here, knocked out Jack O'Day in the second round of a scheduled six-stanza tilt at the 22nd Engineers' Armory in New York city, Friday night. The feat accomplished by Freeman puts him in a position as heavyweight king of the New York National Guard.

Sergeant James M. McCabe of this city, who arranged for Freeman's battle with O'Day in New York city Friday night, was informed that a soldier by the name of Neblett, who retired from the guard ring as champ of the big boys, would be reconditioned for a battle with Freeman.

Freeman, who was introduced from the ring in the local armory several months ago, is a regular army man and is stationed at West Point.

CHAMPIONS MUST WIN TITLES IN THE RING

Chicago, Jan. 5 (AP).—The National Boxing Association will not recognize Jack Dempsey or anyone else as heavyweight champion until he wins the title in the ring.

Concerning the proposal of William Muldoon, veteran New York Boxing Commissioner, that Dempsey be recognized immediately as the champion, Paul Prehn, president of the N. B. A., said:

"The National Boxing Association is not in favor of making champions in the heavyweight or any other class until they win recognition as such in the ring. What would be the purpose and what would the sportsmanship amount to if commissions named champions without their coming through to win them?"

Highland Wins In Extra Period

After outshooting their Bayonne, N. J., opponents 20-9 in the first half, then falling down in the second session so that the Jerseyites tied them 29-29, the Highland Hose Company quintet won out in an extra five minute period, 35-34, at Smith's Hall, Highland, Friday night.

It looked as though victory would be easy for the firemen in the first half, but the second brought about a sudden change in the Bayonne team, who scored from all angles. The New Jersey boys came near taking the tilt 30-29, but Pete Bruck of this city, and captain of the Highlanders, dropped a foul through the hoop in the last second of play and tied the tally.

Then came the five minute extra period, which was a hectic session. The skeeter state boys reeled off four points in no time, when Guckner of Highland came through with a field and a free throw shot, while Hasbrouck, who played his first game with the Ulster county team after a considerable absence, dropped the field that won for Highland 35-34.

Lockhead did the big point getting for Highland. He came through with 11 markers. Gucker, whose work played a heavy part in Highland's win, trailed him with 9 points. Maury McDermott, well known to Kingston baseball fans, and who usually plays a fine game at the pivot position, was held to one point Friday night by Anderson, center of the Bayonne aggregation. While holding McDermott to the low tally, Anderson came through with 12 points, highest individual score of the game.

Rosenberg Beats Johnny Dundee

Veteran Italian Fighter of More Than 100 Ring Battles Bows to Former Bantamweight King—Schmeling Defeats Sekyra.

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—The end of the road, a long and honorable way that has wound through Fistiana for more than eighteen years, appeared today in the sight of Johnny Dundee, brave little warrior who has fought them all.

Heart-broken that he was not considered a fit opponent, despite his 35 years and more than 100 ring battles, for Young Al Singer, latest of the lightweight sensations, the bounding Scotch-wop asked a chance to prove his worth against a lesser opponent. He got it last night and went down to defeat, beaten to the decision by Charley Phil Rosenberg, former bantamweight king, in a ten-round semi-final at Madison Square Garden.

There is little left of the ring technique of one of the greatest little warriors of all times, a champion in both the featherweight and junior lightweight divisions. The heart of the little Italian, big enough and game enough for a heavyweight, still carried on, driving him on into a losing battle, but the flesh has given way to age.

At times Johnny baffled the rugged Rosenberg, ten years his junior and five pounds heavier, with lightning left hooks, the bounding footwork, and cagey swapping at close quarters that made him famous. A few times Dundee tried his old trick of bounding backward into the ropes, leaping forth again to spear his opponent off-balance. But last night this manouver, a trick Johnny himself invented, was just a slow motion exhibition of how it used to be done with speed.

At the close of the bout, Dundee, who fought Benny Leonard six times in no-decision bouts, Johnny Kilbane, Freddy Welsh, and Frankie Burns, was just a tired old man, his black thatched, now thinning tangled over weary eyes, his face lined with marks of fatigue. There was a blotch of blood above his right eye, souvenir of a sharp right to the temple in the third round.

Although Johnny was beaten badly solidly about the body at times at long range, where he once was invincible, he had the satisfaction of flooring Rosenberg for no count in the sixth with a right to the chin, thus adding in perhaps his final engagement to the reputation he always bore for light hitting.

The main bout, overshadowed in sentimental interest at least by the battle of the former champions, added more impetus to the surge of the young German heavyweight, Max Schmeling, who easily trounced Joe Sekyra, blonde Bohemian from Dayton.

Schmeling, who is almost a duplicate in appearance of Jack Dempsey—the same cast of countenance, lowered black brows, long slim muscles, and bobbing weave—fought for the second time in America. In his first engagement he knocked out Joe Monte, of Boston, and last night did all but that to Sekyra.

The Dayton youth was blood-drenched and wobbling at the close from the short hooks Schmeling threw from a crouch to his head. He rarely played for Sekyra's body and might have knocked him out with a more varied attack. As it was, Schmeling drew round after round of applause from the 13,531 fans. He seemed impervious to punishment and is a sharp hitter with either hand, and a smart, clever boxer.

ROAMERS WILL PLAY CONGREGATIONALS TONIGHT.

The Roamers will stack up against the Congregational quintet at Epworth Hall tonight at 9 o'clock. The Roamers will no doubt be pressed hard by the Ponckhockie lads because they are one of the strongest teams in the Sunday School League. The Roamers will use their regular lineup with Hyatt, Boyce and Raichle forwards, Cahill center, Bittner and Robins, guards. A preliminary will be staged at 8 o'clock between the Clinton Avenue Intermediates and the Ford five.

BOXERS ENTERTAIN AT A.D.K. SMOKER AND SOCIAL

The social meeting and smoker held by Arabian Degree Klan, Junior Order United American Mechanics, in Mechanics' Hall, 14 Henry street, Friday night, proved one of the outstanding events of recent activities. At the smoker local pugilists entertained in a manner that pleased all. Among the boys who swapped punches with oversized mitts were Nick Zinna vs. Gene Painter, Vince Coffey vs. Dewey Van Buren and Joe Myers vs. Frenchy Duwig.

One of the Ten

School had begun and the first problems of adjusting the effects of the summer's vacation were in order on the playground.

Miss W—— thought she had heard a forbidden word used twice by one little boy so she said tactfully: "What was that you said, Jimmy?"

That she had evidently not been mistaken was obvious from the earnest reply: "No, Miss W——, I wasn't cussing. I never cuss. I always follow the Ten Commandments, and one of them says, 'Thou shalt not cuss.'"

Will Power

Marjorie has a propensity for tearing the covers off magazines. She had accompanied her mother to a neighbor's home nearby. The neighbor invited the little friend to spend the afternoon with her, and mother, consenting, admonished the child not to damage the magazines.

Marjorie replied, "I'se won't do it till you is gone."

Rickenbacher in his racer on the Indianapolis speedway in 1915.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form today, selling off sharply after a spirited opening rally. There was nothing in the day's news to explain the selling movement, which was generally described as a natural correction of a top-heavy speculative position. Several early gains of 3 to 15 points were cut down, or wiped out, and a number of issues sank 1 to 5 points below yesterday's final quotations.

Preliminary estimates of the U. S. Steel monthly tonnage statement to be issued next Thursday indicate a gain of between 75,000 and 100,000 tons in December. Announcement of a five for one stock split by A. G. Spalding and Brothers was the only important business development of the morning.

After an opening bulge in each stock, radio and Victor talking machine broke sharply on the traditional "selling on the good news" following the announcement of merger terms. Radio opened 15 points higher at 410 and then slumped to 384. Victor Talking Machine converted an early gain of 2⅞ points into a loss of 4½. Wright Aero dropped from 273 to 265 and Curtiss from 153 to 149.

Fears of an early increase in Federal Reserve rediscount rates were stressed in several of the week-end market letters. Conservative bankers were of the opinion that a higher rate would be necessary unless there was a marked reduction in speculative activity in the securities' markets. It was thought in some quarters that a rise in the bank of England rate would precede any change here.

Motor stocks were under pressure on the theory that recent price-cutting forshadowed keener competition among the leading manufacturers this year, and a reduction in unit profit. Coppers also fell back sharply on liquidation by pools, which had marked up several of these issues to new high records on the strength of the recent advances in the price of the red metal.

The closing was irregular.

Sales approximated 2,400,000 shares.

POLICEMEN GRATEFUL FOR POLICE BALL PATRONAGE

To the Editor of The Freeman.

Sir:

Allow me to express through the columns of The Freeman the sincere thanks of the members of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association to the citizens of Kingston for their wonderful support and patronage at our recent police ball. We feel the success of the ball was due in a large measure to the wonderful cooperation of The Freeman for the valuable news space which you so generously gave us. With its wide circulation in both city and county, the ball was brought to the attention of a vast majority of people. The proceeds are for our pension fund for which a nice sum was realized from the ball. We also want to thank those who so ably assisted at the ball in various duties.

Very truly yours,

PETER KERESMAN,
President Kingston Patrolmen's Association.

Says Smith Forces Are Killing Party

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP).—Representative Box, of Texas, newly appointed Democratic whip in the house, declared in a letter made public today that the Democratic party would disappear if the situation and forces which nominated Governor Smith and controlled his campaign continue to dominate the party.

The letter was addressed to Governor Roosevelt of New York, who had congratulated Box on his reelection and suggested that the party should maintain a strong national organization, adopt a constructive program and continue an active campaign.

After stating what he believed to be the issues in the future, Box said:

"The situation culminating in the nomination of Governor Smith and Secretary Hoover and the election of the latter, was a calamitous political miscarriage. If the situation and forces which nominated Governor Smith and controlled the campaign continue to dominate the party, Texas, and the entire south will cease to be Democratic, the East will not be controlled, the West will be permanently estranged and the party will break up, some of its voters going to the Republican party, others remaining with the organization and others becoming independents."

In loving memory of our darling daughter, Ruth, who died January 5, 1924.

The Angels came down from Heaven and took our darling away.
But oh! such precious memories, they left with us to stay.
For five long years we have had them,
sweeter, fonder every day.
And we love to think of our baby safe
with Jesus now always.

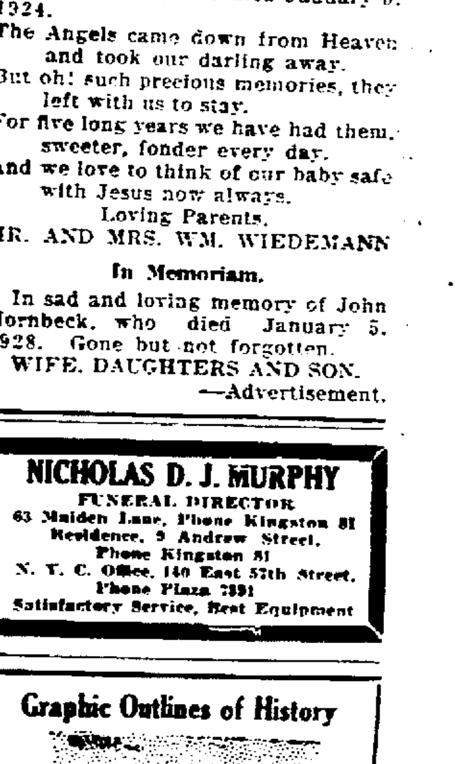
Graphic Outlines of History



Early River Transportation

One of the first means of river transportation was carried on in flat-bottomed barges, propelled by hand. Later the idea of using horses to tow them along was brought into effect. The need of river transportation was so great that steam crafts were absolutely essential. It was then that Robert Fulton built the first boat to be propelled by steam—"The Clermont."

The guiding thought of this institution is an honest desire to serve, and aid those upon whom responsibility falls.

Kingston Savings And Loan Officers

At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Kingston Co-operative Savings and Loan Association held Friday evening the following directors were elected: E. T. Stelle, C. Home, E. F. Flanagan, Jay W. Rifenbary, Theodore Brink, William A. Frey, E. O. Van Aken, Charles B. Everett, Charles H. Buchholtz, Arthur J. Burns, R. C. Van Buren, S. D. Scudder, Jr., A. C. Connelly.

Following the election of directors the board elected as officers for the year the following: E. T. Stelle, president; R. C. Van Buren, vice-president; A. C. Connelly, secretary; S. D. Scudder, Jr., treasurer, and Fowler & Connelly, attorneys. Robert C. Murray and John Hein were elected inspectors of election.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer showed a very prosperous year for the association whose assets have now passed the million dollar mark. Loans made members for home owning purposes during the year amounted to $328,000 indicating that there has been very material assistance given by the association toward home building. Investment in the prepaid shares of the association which are purchased for a single payment of $100 for each share and which are paying the shareholders 5½ per cent interest showed a very marked increase over previous years. This form of investment appeals more especially to those who do not wish to make fixed monthly payments or those who have money to invest. These shares may be bought in units of $100 each and with the present rate of interest make an attractive investment.

Now in its 37th business year, the association is issuing new shares in the current series No. 74-a.

LAMBS PICK UP FAST ON MIXED BARLEY

Mixture Can Be Used to Produce Efficient Gains.

Barley is a good feed for fattening lambs, and with the present spread in price between barley and corn it can be used to produce cheap and efficient gains on lambs. This is the announcement of E. J. Maynard, associate animal husbandman of the Colorado Agricultural college.

"A ration of barley and alfalfa hay, however, does not give as good results as when some other feeds are included," Maynard adds. "Cut corn fodder, wet beet pulp, corn silage and beet molasses were supplementary feeds which showed up to good advantage with barley and alfalfa in a recent fattening test at the Colorado experiment station."

In the experiment the increase in gains secured by feeding lambs the different supplementary feeds, and especially beet by-products along with alfalfa and barley, were particularly noticeable.

The addition of a pound daily of ground, dried corn fodder reduced the alfalfa consumption 30 per cent and at the same time increased the gain per lamb 20 per cent.

Five and one-half pounds of wet beet pulp per day, fed with barley and alfalfa, produced a 40.2 pounds average gain in 106 days, shortening the fattening period by three weeks. Corn silage fed at the rate of two pounds daily improved the barley and alfalfa combination and saved considerable hay, while a cut mixture of barley, beet molasses, cottonseed meal and alfalfa produced much larger gains than where barley and alfalfa were fed alone.

An improved strain of barley was shown to be about 10 per cent more efficient than a common barley for lamb fattening. Comparison of whole and steam-rolled barley showed that while there was a slight advantage in the fattening qualities of the steam-rolled, this advantage amounted to only 30 cents a ton, and the cost of rolling the barley was $2 a ton.

"These results bear out the general contention that 'sheep with good teeth can grind their own grain,'" Maynard points out.

"Marketing grains and roughages through live stock has proved to be the most advisable plan for the farmer. If feeding operations are based on home-grown roughages and an adequate value figured for the manure produced, the element of speculation is largely eliminated.

"Barley production is increasing in Colorado, and the grower should be able to secure the highest total value for this crop by feeding it on his place in a well-balanced ration."

Fattening Hogs for Home Meat Supply Pays Well

The majority of hogs that are fattened in Arkansas are fed for home slaughter. Many of them have been cheaply raised on pasture and general waste from the farm. The last 100 pounds in weight, however, usually must come from high-priced feeds, declares M. W. Muldrow, University of Arkansas college of agriculture extension service. As a rule very little attention is paid to the cost of producing the gains made on these hogs. Only a few to the farm are fed, and if the cost of production runs higher than would be profitable if the hogs were to be sold, there is no apparent loss, but in reality the owners have used up unnecessary feed which must be replaced or which could have been sold. Particular reference is made to those hogs which are fattened on corn alone or corn and shorts alone. Gains possible from cull sweet potatoes, or such crops, could be increased by a judicious combination with other feeds.

Poisonous Effect of Sweet Clover Hay

Sweet clover hay cut and cured from the second year's growth is not always a safe feed for cattle. During the last few years since this crop has come into quite general use and farmers have put up hay from the second year crop many unfavorable results have been reported. Under certain conditions the clover has an effect upon the blood that prevents it from clotting. For example, quite a number of cattle that have been fed heavily on sweet clover hay have bled to death after dehorning, castration or other surgical operations because the blood failed to clot.

Hogs Refuse Barley

Inferior quality of barley is the reason hogs will not eat it readily, according to Rex Beresford of Iowa State college, who has been working on the problem since numerous reports came in that hogs refuse to eat this year's crop.

Much of it is not fit to feed, but where it is not too inferior it is safe to feed, and hogs may be induced to eat it by mixing it with oats, tankage, molasses or some other palatable feed.

GREAT NEW PLAYHOUSE WILL RISE IN LONDON.

London, Jan. 5 (AP).—One of the most up-to-date and palatial theatres in the world is soon to be erected on the south side of Leicester Square by Jack Buchanan, popular British comedian and actor-manager, who recently paid $2,500,000 for a big site in this part of London's theatre-land.

The purchase is looked upon here as involving one of the most important building schemes that have been undertaken since the war. The buildings now standing on the property will be demolished next March and Mr. Buchanan hopes to open his new theatre within fifteen months afterwards.

CARELESS WORK CAUSES RAREST POSTAGE STAMP

Paris, Jan. 5 (AP).—The rarest postage stamp in France is due to the carelessness of a government printer who tore a roll of blank stamp paper. To avoid explanations he mended it with a strip of red paper and when the green, 20-centime stamps came out of the machine 10 of them were printed on a red background.

MEXICO WILL TREAT CRIMINALS GENTLY.

Mexico City, Jan. 5 (AP).—The whip and like instruments of punishment are to be abandoned on the Mexican "Devil's Island" and trade schools and cooperative workshops are to be established for the benefit of the prisoners.

Emotional scenes were enacted among the prisoners on the island when General Francisco J. Mujica, new director of the penal colony, announced that henceforth only humane methods would be employed in dealing with the criminals exiled there. Many of the prisoners broke into tears when the general, in a speech to the members of the colony, made known the new policy.

The colony occupies the largest of a group of three islands off the southwestern coast of Mexico, known as Las Tres Marias. Only criminals of the worst type are sent there and the establishment long ago earned for itself the title Mexican Devil's Island. Prisoners shuddered at the idea of being sent to the island and tales of hardship among the outcasts stationed there rivaled those from the original "Devil's Island", France's famous prison colony off the coast of French Guiana.

General Mujica announced that machinery will be brought to the colony to take the place of manual labor in some of the heavier work. The cooperative system will give the prisoners a participation in the profits of the industries established on the island and each prisoner will be taught a trade.

NEW FLAG OF TURKEY DISCARDS CRESCENT.

Angora, Turkey, Jan. 5 (AP).—A movement has been started for the adoption of a new flag by the Turkish Republic. The historic crescent will still appear, but as a capital C, no longer a crescent. It will be crossed by a capital T, forming the monogram of the Turkish Republic.

In the newly adopted Latinized form Turkey is now Cumouriet Turk. The plain field of red and the star of the present flag will be retained.

PARIS POLICE MAKE SUICIDE DIFFICULT.

Science Of Fisheries To Be Surveyed

The scientists who work in laboratories and far places to assure adequate fisheries for the future will, at their second biennial conference, consider the cultivation of fish, like that done at the fisheries biological laboratory of the bureau at Fairport, Iowa (above), and the fish tagging work of Dr. Willis H. Rich (below).

ITALY SCOFFS AT CLAIM U. S. EVOLVED ICE CREAM.

Florence, Italy, Jan. 5 (AP).—Recent allegations in the American press that Philadelphia produced the first ice cream have been met with sardonic sneers by the local historians.

The Florentine records show that there was a thriving ice cream trade here back in the 15th century. Toward the end of that period a certain Genoese navigator started something. But Columbus did not discover Philadelphia, nor did he bring any ice cream back from the New World. The industry was already established in Italy.

Catherine de' Medicis, when she moved from Florence to France, was so addicted to ice cream that she took her own "gelateria", or freezing plant, along with her.

Valley Locks Moisture

The climate of Death valley, Calif., is due to a measure to its configuration. It consists of a long, narrow, parallel valley, considerably below sea level. The Panamint mountains soar over from it the moist winds of the Pacific so that in August there is less than one-half of 1 per cent of moisture in the atmosphere.

Perhaps Shakespeare Wore Plus Four

By FRANK H. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Boston, Jan. 5.—Shakespeare loved the game.

At the writer afternoons lengthen and the rain drives foursomes to the clubhouses here in Britain golfers set the clubs before the log open fires of the smoke rooms for a session of the new pastime of quoting Shakespeare on the ancient game.

A player started something a few weeks ago when he remarked he believed it possible to describe a golf match in Shakespeare's own words. Golfers all over the country have been helping him out:

"Cursed be the hand that made these fatal holes!"—Richard III.

"Give me the iron, I say."—King John.

This must have been from an ancient caddie.

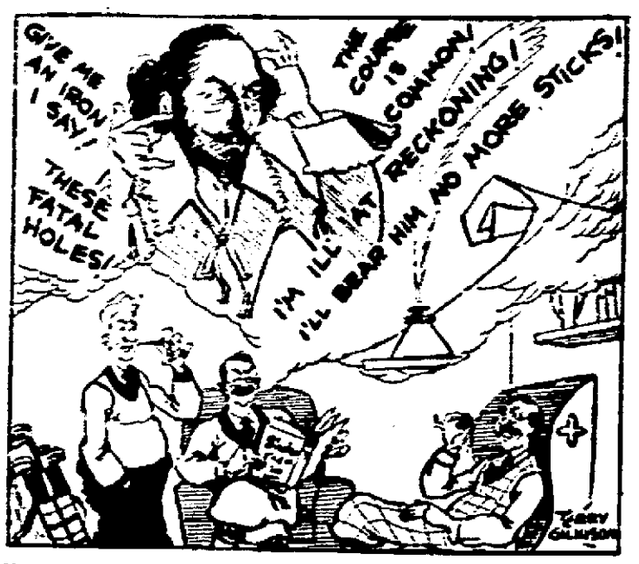
"A plague upon the tyrant that I serve. I'll bear him no more sticks."—The Tempest.

"Uneven is the course, I like it not."—Romeo and Juliet.

Othello, the Moor, seems to have been an honest golfer. "I am ill at reckoning," he admitted.

Then he rather spoiled it by claiming to be "most potent in potting." He must have meant putting.

The "Show of Kings" supplies the picture of the dub who fans the air: "A fourth! Start eyes! What! Will the line stretch out till the crack of doom? Another yet? A seventh. I'll see no more."



"He transports his poisoned shot and hits the woundless air."—Hamlet.

"You know the course is common."—Measure for Measure.

"A garish day, to be the aim of every dangerous shot."—Richard III.

Somebody even suggests Calaban faced a stymie when he said: "Here you sty me in this hard rock whilst you do keep from me the rest of the island."

Again, from The Tempest: "By bosky acres and by unshrubb'd down.

Rich scarf to my proud earth; Why hath thy queen summon'd me hither to

This short-grass'd green."

And in Macbeth we have: "Duncan comes here tonight." But it could hardly have been George Duncan, the modern Scot, who in the play reports a little fracas in a bunker.

"Are, my good lord, safe in a ditch he bides with twenty trenched gashes on his head."

The modern Duncan visits bunkers, but never needs twenty to get out.

"The Taming of the Shrew" has advice for the nineteenth hole: "Do as adversaries do in law, strive mightily, but eat and drink as friends"—after the match is over.

Take Precautions Against "Flu"

Special precautions have been taken at Fort Jay, Governors Island, to prevent the prevailing respiratory disease from becoming epidemic.

A cautionary memorandum has been issued by Lieutenant Colonel Paul Freeman, U. S. Army Medical Corps, the post surgeon, warning the men of the garrison to take the precautions necessary to ward off the disease and against doing the things which promote them. All members of the garrison have been given prompt treatment as soon as they have developed symptoms of the disease and so far there has been no epidemic at the post.

In the cautionary memorandum, Lieutenant Colonel Freeman states: "When the disease is prevalent, well persons should avoid theatres, mass meetings, closed and crowded cars, and close contact with their fellow men. There is danger in kissing and the use of common drinking cups, the roller towel, pipes, soda water glasses, spoons and other objects recently mouthed. The hands should be washed before eating and the fingers kept away from the mouth and nostrils. Coughing and sneezing on other persons should be particularly avoided and spitting regulations and ordinances strictly enforced.

The principal predisposing factors are: Impure air, dust, sudden changes of temperature, exposure to cold and wet, over-work, loss of sleep or insufficient rest, improper food and other conditions that lower the general vitality of the body. Other important predisposing factors are: Mechanical defects in breathing, such conditions are as adenoids, polypus, enlarged tonsils, deviation of the nasal septum or chronic catarrhal conditions, all of which should receive appropriate treatment.

Good ventilation is very important and the air should be warm and moist. Cleanliness of the mouth and teeth are essential. The good effect of cold baths, exercise, fresh air, sunlight and wholesome food should not be overlooked.

Persons with influenza may have a feeling of cold or may have a chill, there is a general muscular and bone ache, cough and fever. The fever lasts about three days and there are marked catarrhal symptoms, running nose, sore throat, cough and sneezing. There is a marked general depression with resulting disability for about a week following the subsidence of the fever. The great danger of influenza is due to the susceptibility to pneumonia, which is the principal cause of the high mortality. Medical attention should be sought at the earliest practicable time."

Rickard Slightly Better but Critical

Sports Promoter's Appendix Found to Have Gangrenous Infection—Friends Sought Dr. Mayo, Traveling in Cuba.

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 5 (AP).—Tex Rickard is "slightly better this morning, but his condition still is critical," said a bulletin issued shortly before 9 a. m. today by Dr. E. H. Atkins, the physician who operated on the New York promoter on Tuesday for acute gangrenous appendicitis.

"Mr. Rickard is slightly better this morning, but his condition is still critical," it said. "The inflammation has subsided slightly. This morning his pulse is 128. Last night it was 146. His temperature this morning is 102.4. Last night it was 104."

All day yesterday rumors persisted that Rickard was desperately ill, but these were not confirmed until Dr. Atkins issued his bulletin shortly after midnight. Messages sent to Cuba late yesterday seeking the aid of Dr. William Mayo, famous Rochester, Minnesota, specialist, gave indications of the trend of the promoter's illness, but Rickard's friends insisted that Dr. Mayo's services were sought as a precautionary measure.

It was announced that Dr. Mayo, who was traveling in the Cuban interior, could not be reached, but later the Havana newspaper El Mundo quoted Dr. Mayo as saying that in his opinion Rickard's condition was such that his services would not avail.

Dempsey Excluded from Room.

No one except Mrs. Rickard and attendants were allowed to enter the sick room. Jack Dempsey arrived last night for a conference with Rickard on his proposed heavyweight elimination bouts, the first match of which was projected between Jack Sharkey and W. L. (Young) Stribling here in February. The former heavyweight champion was not permitted to see the sick man.

Rickard arrived here December 28 and made the announcement that he had matched Sharkey to fight Stribling.

The promoter became ill Monday night as he was about to attend a social function. He complained of intense pain in his right side and continued to suffer from what he believed to be indigestion until Tuesday afternoon when Dr. Atkins was summoned.

The appendicitis operation followed and bulletins from the sick room stated that Rickard's condition was favorable, despite the fact that the appendix had been found to have a gangrenous infection.

Genesis of Radio Tube

The first electric light was developed by Sir Humphrey Davy. That was 118 years ago. Later Thomas A. Edison developed the incandescent filament lamp and, from it, discovered what is known as the Edison effect.

Quite a number of years later Professor Fleming, an Englishman, first utilized the Edison effect in detecting radio signals. His detector tube was called the Fleming valve.

Later Dr. Lee DeForest discovered that a third element—now called the grid—made a much more sensitive detector of radio signals. Around this remarkable little lamp has been built the modern broadcasting structure.

Wooden Indian Signs

John L. Morrison, editor, and a collector of wooden Indians, says: "Wooden Indians are not indigenous to American soil. As early as the reign of James I the wooden Indian was a familiar sight in England. Of the early wooden Indians in America, an odd, cupidlike Pocahontas that once stood guard on Hancock street, Boston, dates from 1730. The pioneer authenticated appearance of a cigar store show figure was in 1770, when Christopher Demuth opened a tobacco shop in Lancaster, Pa. This figure was not an Indian, but a delicate, dimpet-type gentleman extending a snuffbox invitingly."

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Jan. 5.—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets).—The season's first carload of Florida strawberries arrived on the New York city markets today. The shipment came from Lakeland and consisted of 5,308 quarts. The fruit was of fine quality and wholesaled principally at 65c @ 75c a quart basket.

A preliminary report shows that the strawberry acreage in Florida this season is estimated at 4,900 acres, as compared with 3,640 one year ago and a five-year average of 4,045 acres.

Green peas from California and Mexico were in moderate receipt. The demand was less active and values averaged lower. Crates containing about 45 pounds peddled out at $6.50 @ $7.50, mainly $7.00 @ $7.25.

Tomato arrivals were generous this week especially from Cuba and the Bahama Islands. The offerings varied greatly in quality and values, therefore, ranged widely. Trading has been generally limited. The fancy pack containing 144 tomatoes sold from $1.00 @ $3.00.

The estimate of the tomato acreage on the lower east coast of Florida is 18,000 acres or 7,000 more than last year and the heaviest plantings in the last five seasons.

Receipts of Florida big Boston lettuce were moderate. The market was irregular with the demand confined to fancy stock. Sales on hampers of about 30 and 40 heads were consummated within the price range of $1.00 @ $2.25 per hamper.

The Florida lettuce crop this season may total 298,000 hampers, as against 257,000 last year.

The outstanding feature of the onion market of late was the increase in the tariff on foreign onions arriving on and after January 21 by 50 per cent. Each year the volume of imported onions has been increasing and with the higher tariff the market for domestic stock will undoubtedly show some improvement.

Growers of early potatoes report intentions of decreasing acreage 29 per cent from that of last year. The growers who reported planted 67,400 acres of potatoes last season, or about a fifth of the total acreage of commercial early potatoes in eleven southern and eastern states.

Salmon in Millions

In some Alaskan streams salmon have at times appeared in such massed numbers as to make it seem that the channel was almost solidly filled with fish. This, however, occurs only during brief periods at the height of the annual runs or migrations of adult salmon from the sea to streams for spawning purposes.

Almond Variation

Almonds are of two kinds—bitter and sweet. The bitter almond is cultivated to a limited extent in Mediterranean countries, and the nuts are used in the manufacture of flavoring extracts and of prussic acid. The sweet, or edible, almond is grown on a commercial scale in the south of Europe, in California and in some other countries.

Y., will be held at the office of the said association, 3 East Strand, Kingston, N.
